Economy Bloc In House Wins O. K. for Sharp Slash in Funds Agriculture Supply Bill Passed Without Record Vote GOES TO SENATE

Would Provide 67 Million Less Than Roosevelt Asked

Washington—(AP)—That nightmare of many congressmen, the fear of having to vote in this election year for new taxes or an increase in the national debt limit, helped economy advocates win house approval last night for a drastic reduction in federal farm outlays.

Without a record vote, the chamber passed an agriculture supply bill which would provide $66,928,435 less than President Roosevelt proposed for activities in behalf of the farmer during the fiscal year starting July 1.

The house held the measure to a total of $722,001,084, which is $579,339,231 under the total available for the current fiscal year. It retained many of the reductions made by its appropriations committee, despite the fact the president had called the committee cuts perfectly terrible and Representative Jones (D-Texas) had pleaded with tears in his eyes for restoration of a $25,000,000 loan fund to help tenants become farm-owners.

Senate Must Act Now the bill goes to the senate, where farm state members will try to restore it to the size asked by Mr. Roosevelt and undertake also to add at least $200,000,000 for "parity" payments. These would be designed to give farmers the same purchasing power, in terms of non-farm goods, that they had in 1909-14.

In his budget message this year, telling congress how it could keep within the $45,000,000,000 debt limit with only $460,000,000 of new taxes, Mr. Roosevelt asked a farm appropriation of $788,929,519 and congressional permission for the rural electrification administration to borrow $40,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The $722,001,084 house bill includes the $40,000,000 as an outright appropriation, however.

Four days of debate, during which farm bloc members charged that agriculture was being forced to bear the brunt of the economy drive, the house added only $87,628,828 to the amount recommended by its appropriations committee.

These additions were: $47,500,000 for sugar benefit payments, which were restored after it was contended that sugar processing taxes already had poured more than that sum into the treasury and that to deprive the farmers of the benefit of the taxes would be unjust.

$40,000,000 for R.E.A. $126,828 for dry land farming experiment stations.

Bill in Brief

Here is the way the agriculture appropriation passed by the house last night compares with President Roosevelt's recommendations and with the fund appropriated last year.

House bill—Appropriates $722,001,084, including $500,000,000 for benefit payments to farmers co-operating with crop control programs. $47,500,000 for benefit payments to sugar growers and $40,000,000 for the rural electrification administration.

President's proposal—An appropriation of $788,929,519 and congressional permission for the rural electrification administration to borrow $40,000,000 from the R.F.C. The appropriation to include two major items which the house eliminated—$25,000,000 for loans to help tenants become farm-owners and $72,078,212 to supplement an automatic appropriation of approximately $100,000,000 for the disposal of surplus farm commodities.

Last year—Congress appropriated $1,301,340,315 for farm expenditures.

UGH!

Time was when Indian chiefs called a pow-wow, painted up and started on the war path when the white men infringed on his rights and properties. Even the Apaches, who were the terror of the plains, have changed their tactics and much prefer hailing the nearest policeman to settle their difficulties. The white man found the Indians on this continent when they landed, but the want ads had been in use hundreds of years before that memorable era. They have been improving down through the years—until they have become the favorite advertising medium of millions of people. Read them, use them for profit.

Senator Criticizes Principle of Government In Business CONVENTION ENDS Speaker Sees Increase in Building Activity During 1940

Senator Alexander P. Wiley of Chippewa Falls, speaking at the banquet which last night climaxed the 2-day convention of Wisconsin Constructors, Inc., said that the principle of government in business "isn't right" and that it "creates fear and uncertainty because it discourages private initiative."

The senator, appearing before about 300 men in the Conway hotel, declared: "We know that to hamper industry either by an over-dose of government regulation or an over-dose of taxation, like the undistributed profit tax, puts men out of work and paralyzes industry—with the result that confidence and cohesion are further dissipated."

The convention, at its last business session yesterday afternoon, elected Alfred R. Ganther of Oshkosh president, succeeding B. E. Willschick of Racine. Other officers are Harold Molzahn, LaCrosse; T. S. Willis, Janesville; and Clark Abbott, Marshfield, vice presidents, and Howard G. Whitman, Neenah, secretary-treasurer. J. Harry Green of Janesville is executive secretary.

Odd Nansen, Norwegian architect, was the second speaker at last night's banquet. He described Finland's plight in its present war with Russia and urged that Americans do all they can to help the small democracy in its battle for existence against the Soviet Union.

Senator Wiley told the delegates that "if there is a need for government spending, it should be the policy of government to see that more and more money goes into public works and that labor in WPA is absorbed by private enterprise."

Ice Loosening Grip on Barges On Mississippi

Tugboat Captain Believes Hazards Reduced: Tries To Pick Up Craft

Memphis, Tenn.—(AP)—Ice lessened its grip upon shipping on the river lower Mississippi today, the river current moving away from broken from the Gayoso bend gorge.

Captain Earl Cutting of the tugboat Illinois regarded hazards as so reduced that he pushed out downriver in an effort to pick up seven barges, bearing farm implements, grain and metals, which the ice tore loose last night.

The barges were ripped away when the lower part—an estimated 10 miles—of the 23-mile long Gayoso bend gorge broke up. Until then the boat and its 10-barge tow, valued at $1,000,000, had been held tight in the pack near Ridgely, Tenn.

Before starting after the fugitive barges Captain Cutting moored the three that he had been able to maneuver into a cove.

Upper Part Holds Memphis offices of Federal Barge Lines, owners of the Illinois, reported one loose barge lodged against ice at Hathaway light and the other six had pushed up on a sand bar at Fritz's light, a few miles downstream.

Trade Treaties Called Harmful

Economist Cites Figures To Show Effects of Reciprocal Program

Washington—(AP)—A spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers told the house ways and means committee today that the government's latest foreign trade figures prove the reciprocal trade treaty program to be harmful to both agriculture and industry.

Dr. John Lee Coulter, consulting economist for the association, said in a statement prepared for the committee:

"The Feb. 1 figures of the department of commerce show that agricultural imports have increased 36 per cent since 1934, when the trade treaty act was passed. Thus, the effect of the trade agreements to the American farmer has been to add more than one-third to foreign products which now enter his domestic market."

"But that is not all of the story. For the same five-year period, 1934-39, or the trade agreements period, the export of American farm produce has decreased 10.6 per cent. In other words, the trade agreements have failed to develop foreign markets as proponents of the act claim."

Dr. Coulter said proponents of the act also had contended that exports of special commodities had benefited, but he declared that no statistics had been produced to support these claims.

Dr. Coulter was the first witness called on the last scheduled day of hearings held by the ways and means committee on extension of the act authorizing the president, through the state department, to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries.

Man Is Killed When Struck on Highway

West Bend, Wis.—(AP)—Henry John Fischer, 34, of Highland Park, Ill., was killed by an automobile on Highway 55 last night while he was walking for help after his car became stuck in a snowbank.

IN FORGERY FUREOR

Present at an animated session of the Dies committee in Washington, D. C. was David Mayne (above) of Washington. The committee announced that it had received corroboration of much of Mayne's testimony that he had forged documents intended to discredit Representative Martin Dies, committee chairman.

Four Congressmen Cleared of Having Any Part in Plot

Fight Over Publication of Letters Continues in Washington

Washington—(AP)—Four members of the house have been exonerated of any complicity in an alleged plot to kill the Dies committee, but the furore raised by publication of letters purporting to link Chairman Dies (D-Texas) with the Silver Shirts continued unabated on Capitol Hill today.

At the end of a late session of the house last night, Representative Starnes (D-Ala.), acting chairman of the committee, arose to say that there had been allegations of such a plot at a meeting attended by six house members but that such statements were "wholly untrue and inaccurate" insofar as they pertained to four of those named. Starnes did not include with them the other two representatives who he said were at the meeting—Representative Hook (D-Mich.) and Casey (D-Mass.).

It was Hook who started the controversy last week by publishing in the Congressional Record the letters which purportedly were written by William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader. The committee contends that David Mayne of this city has admitted forging the letters.

Question Party Leader In his investigation of the letters the committee questioned Gardner Jackson, legislative representative of Labor's Non-Partisan League. Six house members attended a dinner at Jackson's home on Jan. 9, and Jackson told reporters that the content of the Dies committee was discussed at that time.

In addition to Hook and Casey, Starnes advised the house, those at the meeting in question were Representatives Ramspeck (D-Ga.), Larrabee (D-Ind.), Coffee (D-Wash.) and Murdock (D-Utah).

Coffee, Larrabee and Ramspeck appeared before the committee at a closed session yesterday. Murdock was out of the city.

They were the four whom Starnes exonerated in his speech.

7 Below, 12 Above Zero at Same Time At Badger Capital

Madison—(AP)—You can take your choice.

At 6 a. m. this morning the United States Weather Bureau thermometer at the municipal airport registered 7 degrees below zero, the coldest spot in the United States, according to Eric R. Miller, United States meteorologist.

At the same hour the United States Weather Bureau station at North Hall, on the University of Wisconsin campus, gave the temperature as 12 above zero.

Miller said gravitation was responsible for the difference. "Cold air is heavy, and clings to the ground, while warm air is lighter and rises. The thermometer at the airport is closer to the ground than the one at North Hall," he said.

Red Attacks Are Repulsed, Finns Report

Reveal Capture of Number of Soviet Strongholds Near Lake Ladoga

MANY CASUALTIES Nearly 100 Civilians Killed by Russian Bombs During Week

Helsinki—(AP)—The capture of a number of Russian strongholds northwest of Lake Ladoga and smashing of Russian attacks on the Karelian isthmus in which "the enemy suffered great losses" were reported tonight by the Finnish high command.

The Russians lost 200 dead and 70 prisoners, the communique said, in fighting above Lake Ladoga, continuation of a two-week-old battle.

On the Karelian isthmus the Russian thrusts toward Viipuri were marked by numerous attacks near Summa which were "repulsed in the evening," the communique said.

Nearly 100 Finnish civilians were said today to have been killed in Soviet Russian air raids during the ninth week of undeclared war.

The intensified Soviet air activity, while Finnish defenders held against three red army attacks on the Karelian isthmus was reported to have taken at least 11 lives in yesterday's bombings alone.

Raid Soviet Bases However, Finnish airmen struck back at Russian bases on the Baltic, and Finnish military sources said at least 35 red army planes were shot down.

On the battlefronts, too, the Finns said the invaders continued to suffer heavy losses at the hands of the white-clad riflemen despite their use of parachute troops and tank-driven steel sledges.

Red army planes, raking western coastal cities on the Gulf of Bothnia, were reported to have killed 10 persons and wounded dozens at Fori.

The Finns said one bomb fell squarely on a red cross sign atop an eight-story hospital in a suburb of Fori. Patients were said to have taken refuge in a basement bomb shelter as a squadron of 18 Russian planes pelted the site with bombs, setting fire to a nurses' dormitory nearby.

Removal of Red Cross signs had been ordered by Finnish officials, who said they served as targets, but hospital authorities were said to have awaited a decision of the International Red Cross at Geneva before complying.

Finn Bond Issue Proposed in U. S.

Pittman Says Plan Is Only One Permitting Nation To Buy Arms

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee said today that only by the sale of Finnish bonds in the United States could the little Baltic country obtain the arms it needed to defend itself against the Russians.

Disclosing that he had asked Chairman Jerome N. Frank of the securities commission to testify before the committee Tuesday, Pittman endorsed a proposal by Senator Harrison (D-Mass.) that congress urge the commission to expedite any application the Finns may make to sell securities here.

At the same time, Pittman said he did not think the Harrison plan would conflict with pending legislation, introduced by Senator Brown (D-Mich.), to increase the capital of the Export-Import bank and make funds available for a new non-military loan of $20,000,000 to Finland.

"We know already," Pittman told reporters, "that the limitations of this bill prohibit much aid of Finland of the character that it needs most—arms, ammunition and implements of war."

"Finland is practically out of consideration as far as this bill is concerned and the only real question is whether our exports require a $100,000,000 addition to the capitalization of the export-import bank. I think that the testimony of Jesse Jones conclusively sustains that necessity."

At Least 2 German Planes Shot Down On British Coast

War Minister Tells Peace Advocates Conflict Can't Be Halted Short of Victory

Official Report Indicates Third Aircraft Destroyed

BATTLE IN AIR

Newcastle-on-Tyne, England—(AP)—The war cannot be halted "at half-time" like a football game, but must go on until Germany's threat as a military power is ended forever, War Secretary Oliver Stanley declared today.

His speech, fifth of a series by cabinet members, was taken as a reply to peace advocates generally and was aimed directly at General J. B. M. Hertzog, former prime minister of the Union of South Africa, who has urged peace.

To stop now in the war that is five months old today, would bring only "a troubled truce," Stanley said.

Instead, Stanley asserted, it must go on "to victory and then peace" aimed at making the Germans "peaceful and happy members of a peaceful and happy Europe."

He added with vehemence: "But never again, under this leadership or any other leader, under this regime or any other regime, must they have power to inflict upon the world the misery and suffering which twice in our life they have done."

Calls Hertzog "Apologist" In his first public speech since succeeding Leslie Hore-Belisha in the war office, Stanley singled out General Hertzog, calling him an "apologist" for Adolf Hitler.

Hertzog's government went out of office Sept. 6 when it lost its stand for peace with Germany and he recently was defeated when he raised the issue again in the Union's parliament.

"I see that the other day Herr Hitler had an apologist in the shape of General Hertzog," said Stanley. "In a recent speech General Hertzog put the blame for all our troubles upon the treaty of Versailles."

Remarking that the treaty had imperfections, Stanley said: "We, with others, made our mistakes," but went on:

"Do you think that a victorious Germany would give a defeated Britain a treaty of Versailles? Shorn of our empire, our fleet and our trade, we should be a small, overcrowded island, its recovery impossible and even its survival in doubt."

Japs Claim Chinese Firing Endangered American Officials

Shanghai—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman said today that Chinese artillery fire along the banks of the Yangtze river Friday had endangered the United States gunboat Luzon carrying Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and Rear Admiral William Glassford and other American officials.

The incident occurred, the Japanese said, about 20 miles above Wuhu. The gunboat was coming downriver from Hankow.

The Japanese said a Japanese transport was about 500 yards up the river from the Luzon and it was impossible to tell at which ship the Chinese were firing as shrapnel fell around both.

Johnson was returning from a visit to Hankow. Glassford is commander of the American Yangtze patrol.

Others aboard the gunboat included Major William Mayer, military attaché, and Major James McHugh, assistant naval attaché. The Japanese declared the Chinese sought to take advantage of the presence of the American craft by launching a bombardment against Japanese river traffic.

SHOT FOUR TIMES

Mrs. Carrie Staalabarger (above), an Enid, Okla., relief official, was seriously wounded by Montville Edward Wade, 75, who strode into her office enraged by a 10 per cent cut in his monthly check. Shouting "I've stood this as long as I'm going to," Wade fired four bullets into Mrs. Staalabarger's legs, then killed himself.

Describes Fight One of the crew was reported killed and three injured.

The Press association said this apparently was the plane described in the communique as down off the Yorkshire coast.

An eyewitness of this fight said: "I first saw a German plane flying very low over the land with three planes after it. As it passed over a town one fighter was firing at its tail from below, another striking it from above and a third circling in front."

"The German plane began to smoke and eventually it crashed about two miles from the town."

Another witness called this a "Graf Spee battle of the air."

All the German planes were said to be Heinkel bombers.

Raiders were first reported off the Yorkshire coast, where two Heinkel machine-gunned a trawler which later was seen from the shore to be in flames. One of these met its fate inland; the other was at least very seriously damaged over the sea.

Drops Six Bombs The third raider intercepted after it had dropped six bombs at a steamer off the Tyne. All the bombs fell wide. The plane disappeared in the clouds but a little later an explosion was heard. This was believed to be the accompaniment of its crashing.

No air-raid alarm was sounded in the Yorkshire town where residents stood in the streets watching the battle between the Heinkel and three British planes.

Later a witness said he went to the scene of the crash and "saw a huge German plane with black crosses and swastika markings lying in a field near a moorland cottage and riddled with bullets. A military guard was mounted over the wreckage."

Today's series of raids were the third of the week. Monday the nazis launched air attacks on shipping off a 400-mile stretch of British coast under cover of low-lying clouds.

Berlin Report In a renewal of the raids Tuesday the British reported one German bomber shot down and another disabled. (Berlin communique asserted that a total of 18 ships—11 merchantmen and 4 British patrol boats—were destroyed in the two days raids. The British named only three vessels lost.)

Nazi Warplanes in Renewal Attack on Off-shore Shipping

London—(AP)—Hard-hitting British fighting planes today shot down at least two and perhaps three German raiders along England's northeast coast in reprisal for air attacks on shipping offshore.

The air ministry announced the downing of one Nazi plane off the mouth of the River Tyne and another off the Yorkshire coast.

It asserted that another enemy bomber engaged by the British fighters off the coast of Northumberland "was very seriously damaged" and later reports said it had crashed into the sea. Its destruction, however, was not confirmed officially.

The ministry said a ship went to the rescue of the crew of the bomber shot down off the Tyne.

Accounts differed as to the fate of the German plane downed in the Yorkshire area. An air ministry communique reported it "shot down in the sea" but a later version by the authoritative Press association said that after a German bomber had attacked a coastal vessel it was chased inland by three British fighters and crashed in flames after a battle over a Yorkshire town.

Balkan Entente Seeks Makeshift Plan for Peace

Trying to Keep From Being Drawn Into War in Next Few Months

Belgrade, Yugoslavia—(AP)—Fearful of the possibility that war may reach the Balkans by spring, the four powers of the Balkan entente sought today some makeshift storm cellar in which to pass the next few months.

The foreign ministers of Yugoslavia, Rumania and Turkey, and the premier of Greece, in conference here, already have decided that in view of conflicting interests each country must be left to fend for itself.

This precluded any definite plan for cementing the entente into a stronger union, and cost Rumania her chance for automatic support in case the rival demands of Germany and the British-French allies for oil become unbearable.

The conference representatives still hoped, however, to agree on some common declaration and friendly program to improve their chances of escaping any imminent upheaval.

Highway Officials Approve Agreements To Control Trucks

Chicago—(AP)—Highway officials of Iowa, Indiana and Wisconsin approved last night reciprocal agreements for licensing and operation of motor trucks traveling between the states.

K. W. Fischer, Iowa commissioner of public safety, announced after the conferences that Indiana and Iowa had elected to waive registration and permit fees on both for hire and private vehicles.

Separate reciprocal pacts also were reached between Indiana and Wisconsin, and Iowa and Wisconsin, on private vehicles only, Fischer reported. He said Wisconsin law prohibited waiving of fees on for hire trucks.

Investigate Deaths Of 2 Persons in Fire

Niles, Mich.—(AP)—A coroner's inquest will be held Monday in an effort to establish the cause of the deaths of Harry Steele, 52, and Miss Alice Meyers, 59, his housekeeper, who perished Friday in a fire at the Steele home here.

Funeral services were held today for both victims. The body of the woman will be taken to LaPorte, Ind., her former home, for burial.

Coroner William Fifer said blood was found in the one-room dwelling and friends told of a quarrel between the two at a tavern Thursday night.

Honor Student Given Sentence for Robbery

Duluth, Minn.—(AP)—William Max Reager, 18, of Foxboro, Wis., whose brilliant high school record won him a University of Wisconsin scholarship, was sentenced yesterday to serve a maximum of three years in prison for first degree robbery.

He pleaded guilty last week, admitting that he burglarized a home and later stole two cars. Asked then why he committed the offenses, he said:

"I just wanted a car. It never occurred to me that I was going to be caught. It seemed so simple."

District Judge E. J. Kenney said he was unable to keep pleas from all sections of the country to parole the boy. The charge would have permitted a sentence up to 40 years.

Garner's Efforts To Stop New Deal Coup Hold Interest

Tells Georgians "The People" Should Name Party Candidate

Washington—Vice President Garner's efforts to head off a pro-convention coup by New Deal forces in Georgia shared attention today with an impending battle over selection of the Democratic convention city.

Leaders gathered for Monday's meeting of the national committee, which will pick a place and possibly fix the date for the presidential nominating conference, read with interest Garner's statement that "the people" should pick the party's presidential candidate and that he desired to place his name before the Democrats of Georgia in a presidential preference primary.

Governor E. D. Rivers of Georgia, who is pro-New Deal, has suggested that the state send an instructed delegation to the convention. There have been indications also that the state Democratic executive committee would not call a primary but select the convention delegates itself. Under Georgia law the committee may call a primary or not, as it sees fit. If a primary is conducted, the winner usually has the privilege of picking the convention delegates.

Senator George of Georgia, who was re-nominated in 1938 over President Roosevelt's opposition, wrote Garner that many of his constituents had inquired whether the vice president would be as a candidate in event a primary was ordered.

The Texas replied yesterday: "The people should decide and the candidate should be selected at primaries and conventions as provided by law. I am glad that Georgia Democrats follow this plan and I desire at the proper time to enter my name in the Georgia primary."

Garner's associates said that he would also enter the April primary in Wisconsin and those in May in California and Oregon. They added his name would be entered in the Ohio primary in May if Senator Vandenberg did not go in as a "favorite son."

Dr. Gullickson to Quit Chairmanship Of Republican Group

Milwaukee—Dr. F. L. Gullickson, of West Salem, plans to resign one of his two state Republican chairmanships.

He announced here yesterday that he would submit his resignation as chairman of the state voluntary committee to the state-wide Republican convention at LaCrosse Feb. 19.

Dr. Gullickson also heads the state statutory Republican committee.

In a statement accompanying his announcement he said: "I have felt all along that I have represented only about two-fifths of the voluntary organizations because at the time of my election to the chairmanship, young Republicans, the women's organization and some of the other groups did not have a voice in the selection."

Klode Announces New Welfare Setup

Branch Offices of State Department Expected To Save Money

Milwaukee—Frank C. Klode, director of the state public welfare department, has completed arrangements for a new set-up in the state juvenile, pension, and parole and probation divisions which he says will take their traveling agents "out of the horse and buggy days."

A new branch office has been opened in Eau Claire, he said last night, and a similar office is planned in Green Bay. Milwaukee activities will be concentrated in one building here, and small sub-stations will be established at various points in the state.

Heretofore, he said, most field agents worked out of the main offices in Madison, and sometimes traveled hundreds of miles on a single case, returning to Madison to write out their reports in long-hand.

"The new set-up will mean a great increase in efficiency," he declared.

"Agents will find convenient branch offices and sub-stations while traveling. They will dictate their reports and have stenographers send them in. It will mean agents can spend more time in the field. There will be a saving in money, but the exact amount has not been figured out."

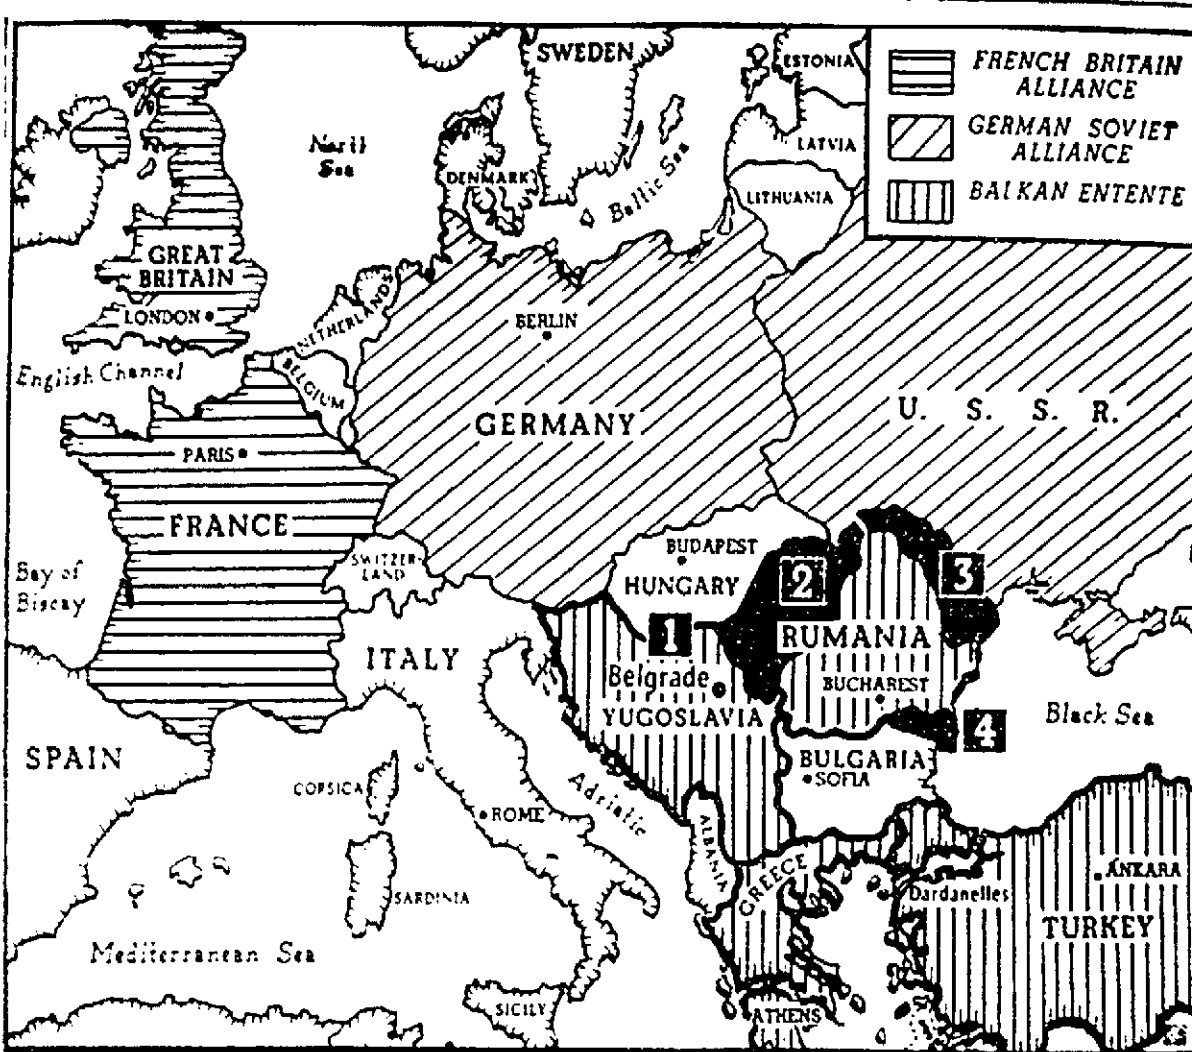

Murray to Take Part In Farm Credit Study

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Among the members of the Republican special committee to study agricultural problems who have just been appointed to serve on the newly created farm credit subcommittee is congressman R. D. F. Murray, Wausau Republican.

"I will be glad to work on this," Murray states, "because a uniform plan of farm credit must be worked out to give all farmers the same rate of interest on their loans, instead of the 45 per cent to 100 per cent difference which now exists."

The farm credit subcommittee is directed to make a special study of all questions relating to the capital which farmers must borrow to conduct their operations, and of the weight of interest charges on the industry.

Murray is already a member of subcommittees on tobacco and miscellaneous crops.

BALKAN ENTENTE STUDIES NEUTRALITY PLANS

The diplomatic eyes of Europe were sharply focused on Belgrade (1), where representatives of the four "Balkan Entente" powers—Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia—assembled to find a way to keep out of Europe's war. Caught in the middle of the German-Allied economic tussle, Rumania was also faced with the dangers of Hungary's striking at Transylvania (2), Russia's marching into Bessarabia (3) and Bulgaria's cry for part of Dobruja (4)—World War prizes. Conferencees were reported to have run into early disagreement and Germany was said to be exerting pressure on Rumania to make her industry, oil and agriculture adjuncts of the Reich's economic structure.

Forensics Meet Scheduled Mar. 23 At Brillion High

Coaches and Principals Also Outline Softball Program

Brillion—The annual winter meeting of the principals and coaches of the Little Nine Conference was held at the Hotel Brillion Thursday evening. The evening began with a 7 o'clock dinner. The 12 schools represented in the Little Nine are Reedsville, Kimberly, Seymour, Denmark, Hilbert, Hortonville, Winneconne, Freedom, Shiocton, Bear Creek, Wrightstown and Brillion. All of the schools were represented.

The finals for the public speaking contest will take place at Kimberly on April 3. The softball schedule for all the schools will begin on April 19. The matter of basketball referees for the winter of 1940 and 1941 was also discussed.

Preliminary plans were discussed for the possibility of holding a band tournament at Brillion in spring. No definite plans have yet been made. C. H. Wileman was asked to take charge of making the plans. Principal C. H. Wileman also presided at the meeting.

The Ladies Aid society of the Emmanuel Evangelical church installed officers at the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. The program committee consisted of Mrs. L. H. Huibregtse, Mrs. F. G. Zietlow and Mrs. Arthur Heimke. Mrs. Edward Janke acted as installing officer.

Officers installed were: President, Mrs. Elmer Schmelter; secretary, Mrs. L. H. Huibregtse. The installing officer also announced the committee appointments for this year and the following officers: Titling and prayer secretary, Mrs. Otto Zorn; mission band leader, Mrs. Harvey Bandt; librarian, Mrs. Ed. Herald; and leader of the Little Nine, Miss Ethel King. During the meeting the new year books were distributed. Plans were made for the society to sponsor a missionary play to be given for the public at the church parlors in February. A committee consisting of the Mesdames L. H. Huibregtse, F. G. Zietlow, Edward Janke and John Jentini was appointed to take charge. After the meeting a social hour and lunch followed. Mrs. Huibregtse was the hostess.

Sixty members attended the monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid society of Trinity Lutheran church at the church parlors Thursday afternoon. The hostesses were the Mesdames Louis Scharf, Helen Jess, Henry Horn, Harvey Heimke, Anna Wenzel, George Engel and William Goldsmith. Two new members were admitted to the society. Appleton Visitor Tells of Fighting in Russia in 1918

The fight between Finland and Russia now being waged in 65 degrees below zero weather brings back vivid memories to at least one Wisconsin man, L. J. Limberg, Plymouth, an Appleton visitor yesterday.

Limberg was with the 310th engineers with the American expeditionary forces from September, 1918 to June, 1919, in north Russia near what was then Obozerskaya, a few miles south of the gulf of Archangel on the White sea.

The bitter cold then was instrumental in defeating the Russians in that sector as it is now in the Finnish conflict, according to Limberg, who said the poorly-clad, inadequately equipped Russians died like flies from the cold.

Limberg's unit was about 300 miles north and 300 miles east of Lake Ladoga, the scene of heavy fighting in the present war. The American soldiers, fighting after the armistice, were released from duty in north Russia through the efforts of the late Senator Robert LaFollette, Sr., Limberg said.

Gannett Charges New Deal Heading To Collectivism

New York Publisher in First Address Since Announcing Candidacy

New York—Frank E. Gannett, in his first formal address since becoming a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said today the Republican party "cannot pussyfoot and walk on the fence on this fundamental issue: The New Deal is leading America straight into collectivism."

The Rochester, N. Y., publisher, speaking before the National Republican club, recalled that last April before the same audience he had said President Roosevelt should resign. He has not changed his mind, he said.

Without mentioning the third-term issue specifically, Gannett said: "No emergency has arisen since last April and none can arise, not even a war emergency, that would justify continuance of an administration that has gone so far astray."

Speech Is Broadest

Gannett, whose speech was broadcast nationally, said the New Deal "violates American principles, is, in fact, reaction disguised as reform, and is leading straight to the destruction of the American system of government."

He accused the New Deal of "stealing the Democratic party" and added that the proper emblem of the New Deal party is not the traditional Democratic donkey but a mule—"a hybrid creature barren of reproductive powers."

He said the product of the New Deal's "strange experiment" was a throw-back to benevolent despotism—"a creature half collectivist, half free but fettered private enterprise, incapable of reproducing itself."

"If the American people should permit the New Deal to live long enough," Gannett added, "it will turn into out and out collectivism."

Commenting on John L. Lewis' recent break with the president, Gannett said the two men "came to the parting of their ways" because they "both are wrong; both have built a following by appeals to prejudice and class antagonism."

Assails "Alliance"

"Commented by Lewis' half-million dollar campaign contribution," he added, "the Roosevelt-Lewis alliance resorted to practices outlawed for corporations."

"There is no difference morally between campaign contributions from a corporation, which is a group of stockholders, and campaign contributions from a labor union, which is a group of dues-paying members. Both kinds—all kinds—of mortgages on government must be outlawed," Gannett called the Wagner act "the most unpopular of the New Dealers' ill-considered legislation."

He urged more profit-sharing with workers, "the right to organize, or even-handed justice."

Deeds Office Receipts Total $742 in January

Receipts at the office of Stephen M. Peeters, Outagamie county register of deeds, for January amounted to $742.90, an increase of $139 over receipts of $603.85 for January of 1939, according to his monthly report. Last month 614 chattel filings and 467 recordings were made as against 491 filings and 424 recordings for January of 1939.

Not to be organized, with assured freedom to bargain collectively, and "the right to work, or not to work."

Labor laws, state and national, he said, should be rewritten "in the public interest and in the spirit of even-handed justice."

SEC Embarked on Virtuous Mission, Lawrence States

Wants Prosecutions in Alleged Violation of Corrupt Practices Act

Washington—Having taken the New Deal members of the Securities and Exchange commission to task for "witch-hunting" in some of their decisions, it is a matter of great satisfaction to find the majority of the commission now embarked on a mission which may earn for it the title of the most virtuous in all Washington.

For the word has leaked out that the S. E. C. is about to call on the department of justice to prosecute certain former officers of a public utility company in Missouri for alleged violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices act governing contributions during a political campaign.

If the department of justice under Attorney General Robert Jackson and his principal assistant, Thurman Arnold, should accede to the S. E. C.'s request, the American people may be treated to a real sensation. For it would obviously be difficult for the department to apply the Federal Corrupt Practices act to one set of citizens and not apply it to others, who are alleged to have violated it. Indictments of prominent members of the Democratic executive of 1936 and corporation executives would then be logical.

Senator Holt of West Virginia, Democrat, has pleaded in vain heretofore that the sale of campaign books by the Democratic National committee to corporations in the 1936 presidential campaign was a flagrant violation of the federal statute. He said in June 1938:

"I have made a detailed study of the sale of these campaign books and have prepared a complete list of those who purchased these volumes. It is quite shocking to see money being accepted from some firms which the administration claims to be so bitter anti-labor that they have been charged with violating the Wagner act and being hostile to unions. The list also contains the names of some of the best-known economic royalists, a class that has been so often spoken of as hostile to reform. These royalists become angels with their contributions."

"Some firms who bought books at outrageous sums do business with the federal government. Other firms who want to do business with the federal government also purchased these books. Firms receiving subsidies directly or indirectly from the federal government purchased these books, many of which were autographed by the president of the United States."

Nothing was done about Senator Holt's charges, though the facts about the sale of autographed campaign books have been widely published. Once Minority Leader Bert Snell tried to bring it up but didn't invoke the Federal Corrupt Practices act, but he did not succeed. It is a violation of the law, not only for a corporation to make a contribution which is defined in the law as being "anything of value," but the same statute says it is unlawful "for any candidate, political committee, or other person to accept or receive any contribution prohibited by this section."

And, of course, the contributions prohibited are from "any corporation whatever in connection with any election at which presidential and vice presidential electors or a senator or representative in congress are to be voted for."

Test of Sincerity

Fines and imprisonment constitute the penalties for violation of the autographed law, and since it is a statute relating to political behavior, it forms an acid test of sincerity on the part of political parties that are in power. Thus, the Hatch act, which has been so much publicity, is in fact in comparison with the Federal Corrupt Practices act and there will be no special value to the Hatch law if the department of justice ignores violations of it as has been done with respect to the Federal Corrupt Practices act.

The Republicans have a much better record in their conduct of the department of justice when scandals have arisen. Thus, President Coolidge did not even let the department do the prosecuting, but appointed two special prosecutors—Owen J. Roberts, Republican, and the late senator, Alice Pomeroy of Ohio, Democrat—to prosecute irregularities that concerned a Republican office-holder, Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior. A conviction was secured.

If the S. E. C.'s quest for criminal prosecution against some former public utility executives should be granted and it becomes necessary for the present administration then to obtain the indictment of prominent Democrats and prominent corporation executives, the appointment of special prosecutors would relieve the present attorney general, Robert Jackson, of any political embarrassment. Failure to do anything about the unlawful sale of campaign books in the 1936 campaign may only mean a repetition in the 1940 campaign of such tactics, often called a "shake-down" of corporation executives. But the most important consequence will be a loss of confidence by the public.

ic in the whole Federal Corrupt Practices law if prosecution of all violators is not undertaken, or if only a few are singled out while all others who have plainly violated the statute are left untouched. Whatever else it may have done, in the past, the New Deal majority on the S. E. C. has certainly done much to make itself popular in political Washington by rediscovering the Federal Corrupt Practices act.

Farmers Learn How to Make Rural Living More Enjoyable, Profitable in Short Course

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Several thousand Wisconsin farmers, their wives, and their sons and daughters completed a short course at the state's farm college this week, learning at sessions in the annual farm and home week how to make the farm a better place to live while at the same time making it a more profitable business.

Combining instruction with pleasure, the rural residents discussed the best available experts in Wisconsin and the nation, while they spent spare hours enjoying themselves at livestock exhibitions and rural drama festivals on the campus.

Most important product of the annual farm and home week sessions, in the opinion of the sponsors, are the tips furnished rural residents on how to make rural living more enjoyable.

New Type Stove

There was the speech by R. M. Carter, extension forester, to a farm family group, for example. He described a new type of wood-burning stove, designed for greater convenience in operation and for increased efficiency in wood combustion, and demonstrated its advantageous features.

Patterned after stoves used in Scandinavian and other European countries, Carter explained that but one filling of the wood box, which feeds the fire by gravity, will heat two or three rooms for from 8 to 24 hours without further attention. The stove fits well into modern forestry practices, farmers learned, because the size of the wood used is such that small trees from improvement cutting and culled material from logging and milling operations are useful.

But the farmers also listened attentively to discussions on the business aspects of farming, how to increase bank accounts by increasing per acre income from Wisconsin

Quality Discussion

Hands that care for the utensils and do the milking on Wisconsin farms guide the destiny of the dairy industry—that was the keynote of the quality discussions. Ways in which micro-organisms affect dairy products and how they may be controlled to produce quality products were explained in detail. Five pens in hand-drawn pictures held paramount in producing better quality milk were given as clean environment, clean cows, milkers with clean habits, properly constructed and sterilized utensils, rapid cooling, and proper storing.

The technical aspects of dairying were also given emphasis. Modern dairying, it was said by experts, calls for greater production and utilization of home-produced roughage. According to R. E. Hodson of the U. S. Bureau of Dairy Industry, the trend toward roughage feeds was encouraged by knowledge of the necessity for soil improvement and the growing of soil conserving crop such as grasses and legumes.

A new type of pasture alfalfa, developed at branch breeding station of the University of Wisconsin, was described to farm and home week visitors. The type was described by E. J. Delwiche, agronomist, who explained that besides being valuable as a pasture-type, the new species is expected to require less seed per acre than ordinary types.

New Variety of Oats

Farmers were also told of a new and promising variety of oats—one which yields more than the standard variety. The new variety made its debut at a meeting of grain breeders and seed growers on the farm and home program. The new type resists rust, and is supposed to be of bountiful yield, even in rust epidemic years. It has been christened Vieland. Tested for several years at experiment stations, plans are to distribute it to growers of certified seed in 1941.

At a special grassland conference, farmers had outlined for them precautions for safe-guarding new seedlings of legumes and grasses against the increasing trend toward failure. Tests conducted at the university, said Henry L. Ahlgren, show a number of successful methods.

He said seedlings should be made in a sandy firm, seed-bed reasonably free from weeds and which contains an adequate reserve of lime, phosphate and potash. He cautioned against seeds being planted too deeply, observing that the best stands of grasses and legumes are obtained when the seed is not planted more than a half inch deep.

Maple Grove School Club Names Officers

Officers of the Maple Grove school Bee club of the Maple Grove school, town of Freedom, at a meeting held recently. The officers are Dorothy Witt, president; Mildred Groat, vice president; June Koss, secretary and treasurer. The club plans to hold a Valentine party.

The following pupils were perfect in attendance during January, according to Carmen Kroner, teacher: George Muenster, Vernon Voster, Clarence Jones, Helen Koss, June Koss, John Groat, David Tamm, Victor Muenster, Billy Lee Schroeder, and Marvin Rohm.

Two Ordinances Up at Meeting

Darboy—Holy Angels congregation of Darboy will start erecting a new school building this spring. By means of free will contributions of members and friends and the piques held in June the last three years a building fund of $17,000, including notes and pledges, has been accumulated.

The new school will be a one-story structure, 49 by 75 with three full sized classrooms, a winter chapel, office and store room, with a basement hall 47 by 63 for social purposes including kitchen and cloak rooms. The lavatories also will be in the basement. Added on in the rear of the building will be the furnace room 16 by 25 and the fuel room, and a large cistern for aerating the sulphur water which is to be used in the building. The cistern will ease the load on the deep well pressure system by taking the rain water from the roof for the lavatories.

The school, according to plans made by the architect, Edward A. Wettengel, Appleton, will be semi-fire proof, of hard common brick with under block backing and Bedford stone trimmings to match the other buildings on the church property.

The general contract for the new building has been awarded to Arthur A. Steiner of the Steiner Construction company of Appleton, the plumbing has been let to the Pritz Hardware company of Hilbert. The heating and electric contracts are under consideration by the building committee. It is expected that the total cost of the new building will not exceed $27,000.

Officers of Holy Angels church are the Rev. E. J. Schmit, pastor; Harry A. Stumpf, treasurer, and Herman Schreiber, secretary. Assisting the officers on the building committee are Henry Ashauer, Joseph Utendroek, Jacob Koss, Philip Dietzen, and John Heetzel, St.

The new school is to be erected on the site of the present two-story frame school building, which was erected in 1882 by the Capuchin Fathers of Appleton who were temporarily in charge of Holy Angels parish. At the present time there are 105 pupils in attendance with the Franciscan Sisters of route 1, Green Bay in charge—Sisters Thomsine, Cynilla and Alfreda. A new home was provided for the teachers in 1935. The new school, which is being erected this year on the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of the parish, will be dedicated as a memorial to the pioneers of Holy Angels parish. The celebration of the parish anniversary will be held when the new building is dedicated next fall.

In 1899 the public library was begun with donated books and a few newly purchased volumes. Shelves and a desk were set up in a second story room over the old post office with Miss Winifred Bailey as librarian. She served until 1909 when Miss Mary Benick took over the duties which she has continued to hold. The library moved into its present quarters donated by Andrew Carnegie, in 1915.

Members of the board are Mrs. Irving Hensen, Mrs. F. R. Fisher, Mrs. James Carew, Mrs. Eric Whipple and R. J. Havenor.

Third-Termers are Relatively Small Group, Clapper Writes

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

San Francisco—There is no demand for a messiah in this campaign. No figure is on the scene who in the remotest degree takes on that role in the public mind, not even President Roosevelt. He held that place in 1932 and again in 1936. Huge sections of public opinion in both of those years felt that Mr. Roosevelt was needed to save the country.

I don't find that now. And I don't mean that public sentiment has turned against him. Indeed, it seems to me that he stands higher in public estimation than ever before, with respect to the job he has done, and particularly with respect to the effort he has made. But it is not accompanied by any real demand, that I can find, for another four years.

While I have never thought a third-term race was advisable, I have gone about the country trying to keep a reporter's open mind. Certainly there would be no percentage for me in misjudging the situation, and if there were a real third-term demand in the country it would be to my interest as a political writer to know that it was there.

I just don't find it. Occasionally some political leader, for organization purposes, deems it to his interest to declare for a third term, but now there is even less of that. Occasionally some group favors it.

The strongest third-term sentiment I have found was among a Jewish group in a middlewestern city. An element in that feeling, some local New Dealers told me—and it seemed to dovetail with what I was told directly—is the fact that the Jewish people have been safe under the Roosevelt administration and some of them instinctively prefer the safety they have known to the risk, slight as it might be, of a change.

Then there are some New Dealers—but mostly in Washington, D.C., who see no one else to take the place of Mr. Roosevelt. Added up, the third-termers constitute probably a relatively small group.

People Reluctant to See Tradition Upset

There is no wave of blind reaction that I can find. On the contrary there is more acceptance of the basic reforms of the New Deal, less determination to get rid of them, more feeling that they are here to stay, than I ever have found before in frequent ravings about the country.

But I find deep reluctance to see the barrier against a third term go. That tradition rises up now as a kind of symbol of democracy and its security. Indeed it is more than a symbol. If it is preserved now, it will be all the more difficult for any demagogue in future years to upset it. It is an implement of our political freedom, of our security as a democratic nation. That, I think, is the primary reaction of the average person.

One of the most intelligent and persevering New Dealers on the Pacific coast, Manchester Boddy of Los Angeles, who publishes the only large-city New Deal newspaper on the coast—excepting son-in-law John Boettiger's paper at Seattle—is against a third term.

His reasoning is, in a word, this: During the Roosevelt administration it has been necessary, because of conditions, to greatly enlarge the functions of the federal government. We have given government new powers, and it reaches into the daily lives of citizens as never before. Those changes were necessary. In themselves they do not menace democracy, but they represent nevertheless a trend away from local self-government. It is a tendency we would wish to escape but cannot. Therefore it becomes all the more important to hold the lines where they can be held—and the tradition against a third term, the practice of completely reshuffling the hands that hold the reins, at least after an eight-year interval, is a source of protection to our democratic processes which should not be thrown away when there is no need to throw it away.

I think his reasoning is sound and I suspect that he has thus made articulate the instinctive feelings of the mass of American people.

Our problems, while stubborn, no longer seem so desperate as they did a few years back. We are not in the depths of despair. We feel competent to work at our difficulties even though we see no solutions in sight for some of them.

In other words, the demand for a messiah, so acute in 1932 and again in 1936, has receded. Much of that is due to Mr. Roosevelt's leadership. He has, I think, restored faith in democracy. And by that very achievement he has worked himself out of the messiah role. When he took over, the country was clamoring for a strong hand—some of the Republicans had been saying this country needed a Mussolini.

Under his hand, in eight years, the country has recovered its poise and feels able to go forward now in the normal way.

More than ever I am convinced that a third-term attempt by Mr. Roosevelt, or by his friends, would lead to disaster for him, and bring upon one of the great figures of our time a tragic fall.

Pour Concrete for Bridge at Neenah
Construction of Kimberly-Clark Span Is Ahead Of Schedule

Neenah—Despite cold weather and winter blizzards which curtailed work, construction of the Kimberly-Clark corporation bridge across the canal from the Kimberly-Clark property to the north end of N. Church street is ahead of schedule and work is progressing rapidly, according to Walter Schrieber, superintendent for the Fluor Brothers Construction company, Oshkosh, the contractors.

The contractors poured concrete for construction of the center pier Friday and today, and work on the north abutment will get underway next week. The south abutment has been completed.

The retaining wall which is being constructed along the north bank of the canal is more than half finished. The retaining wall, which will be more than 300 feet long, is being constructed of specially treated lumber. The wall is being built to provide more land area. The space between the wall and bank will be finished in the distance between the wall and the bank ranges from 20 to 60 feet. The canal line at this point is irregular.

The span will be 100 feet long and 24 feet wide with 5-foot sidewalks on each side. The bridge will be constructed of concrete with steel reinforcement and the railing will be of metal.

Glacier Priest to Appear in 3 Programs at Neenah Monday

Neenah—The scientific and educational value of Father Bernard Hubbard's lecture and moving picture, "Cliff Dwellers of the Far North," for high school students as well as adults was pointed out today by officers of the Lions club.

The performances of Father Hubbard, known as the "Glacier Priest," will be given Monday at the Embassy theater.

The first performance will be presented at 10 o'clock in the morning for grade school students, and officers in charge of the program reported that all tickets for the morning performance have been sold. The afternoon performance will be for high school students, while the evening show will be for adults. Because there are tickets left for the afternoon show, grade school children unable to attend in the morning may attend in the afternoon at morning show prices.

Besides being educational, the film is said to be one of the most interesting of its kind. It is Father Hubbard's latest picture, and it was filmed on his thirteenth expedition into Alaska and Siberia.

As the picture is flashed on the screen, Father Hubbard stations himself on the stage and acts as commentator for the film.

It will be a benefit performance, for the money raised by the club will be used for club welfare work, and Father Hubbard's share will go to Alaskan missionaries.

Red Wings to Play At Appleton Rink

Twin City Team Will Defend Lead in Hockey League Standings

Menasha—Red Wings, Neenah-Menasha entry in the Valley Hockey league, will attempt to remain in first place in the league standings Sunday afternoon when they oppose the Appleton sextet at Appleton.

The Red Wings have scored five victories in the league against one defeat. Early in the season they dropped a 6 to 2 verdict to DePere but won 5 to 4 in the second round.

In six games the Red Wings have scored 24 goals and have had 20 markers scored against them.

In early games the season most of the scoring came on solo rushes but in recent games team play has improved. Dave Buksyk has not only been a high scorer himself but has received credit for assists on other goals.

The Red Wings have played Appleton only once and scored an 11 to 3 victory in that meeting. The game for Sunday originally was scheduled for Menasha but has been shifted because no rink is available in the Twin Cities.

The probable lineup for the Red Wings Sunday will have Rex Bremmer and Dave Buksyk at wings. Ben Stepaniak at center, Bob Cole and Frank Maikowski on defense and B. Paulowski in the nets. Lack of spares has been one of the chief problems for the Wings this season.

Appleton has a large squad which has shown improvement in recent games. Probable starters will be L. Brum and M. Childs at wings, H. Braun at center, E. and T. Reider at defense and R. Goert in the goal. Spares include Tracy, Forster, J. Kugler, Steeger, Bransch, and Arndt.

Menasha Red Cross Chapter Is Awarded Honor Certificate

Menasha—The Menasha chapter of the American Red Cross has received an honor certificate for "distinguished achievement" in the roll call drive for 1939-1940. The certificate was received from national headquarters by Mrs. A. J. Hopfensperger, co-chairman of the roll call drive last fall with Mrs. Ira Catlin. The certificate is signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Norman H. Davis, Red Cross national chairman.

The drive last fall resulted in 1,121 memberships, an increase of exactly 50 per cent over the previous year when only 748 memberships were secured. The total of 1,121 is the largest membership in the chapter since the World War.

Receipts also showed a decided increase in the last drive, only slightly less than 50 per cent. Receipts amounted to $1,575.46 in comparison with $1,055.05 in 1938. In addition to the memberships there were contributions from 321 persons.

The drive netted the chapter nearly $950 for local work while $625 was sent to national headquarters. Both Mrs. Hopfensperger and Mrs. Catlin praised the large staff of efficient ward captains and ward workers who conducted the drive and made the record possible.

1940 Farm Program Mapped at Meeting At Forest Junction

Forest Junction—The 1940 agricultural conservation program was explained to a group of approximately fifty town of Brill farmers at the town hall here Thursday evening in a series of county meetings which had opened in the town of Woodville Thursday afternoon.

About seventy farmers, including four women, had attended the Woodville meeting in the town hall at St. John.

Introduced by Edwin Seybold, chairman of the local committee, Henry Heimann, chairman of the county committee, outlined the general aims of the program. Admitting that farm prices were far from what they should be, where, he asked, would prices be if there had been no farm program at all? Complaints, he said, come chiefly from those who neglect to attend the educational meetings. He pointed out how the sugar beet allotment was preventing the over-planting of this crop, which would otherwise be a natural consequence for the 1940 season.

Calculation of payments for this year was presented by Herbert Harder, Chilton, who cited cases under the general allotment plan and basing computations on the national allotment rate of $110 per acre and the Calumet county productivity figure of 129 per cent. Where in 1939 either aerial or ground measurements were used in figuring acreages, depending on which was closest to the allotment, measurements from the aerial photographs of the farms will be used exclusively in 1940.

Two deadline dates in the program were emphasized, Feb. 29, as the last date for making application for crop insurance for spring wheat, and May 1 as the final date on which tenant farmers may group rented acreages with acres owned in one farming unit.

Other speakers on the program were Albert Hillman of the county committee, who spoke on the crop insurance plan, and A. L. McManis, county agricultural agent, who spoke on dairy control and said that little definite progress has been made at recent district and national conferences on the subject.

Farmers, in about two weeks, will be asked to fill out forms concerning their farming intentions for the coming season.

NEW OFFICE, FACTORY BUILDING NEAR COMPLETION

The new office and factory buildings of the Menasha Products company, a division of the Marathon Paper Mills company, Rothschild, are rapidly nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy within the next two months. The addition, built to meet growing production needs, will be one of the most modern in the state.

Menasha Firm Builds Big Addition To Meet Growing Production Needs

Menasha—Construction of the new office and factory buildings of the Menasha Products company, a division of the Marathon Paper Mills company, Rothschild, will be completed within the next six weeks, according to D. C. Everest, Wausau, president and general manager of Marathon Paper Mills.

The expansion program at Menasha includes a new office building of three floors and basement containing approximately 38,000 square feet. It is 116 feet long by 88 feet wide. The factory addition, which adjoins the office building, and the most modern part of the present factory, consists of two floors and a basement, 220 feet long by 110 feet wide. Both buildings are of reinforced concrete slab construction with brick facing. The office building is constructed so that it may eventually be increased to five stories.

Ready in February

It is expected that the factory building will be ready for occupancy early this month and the office addition about a month later.

Increase in sales and resultant growth of the sales divisions, arising largely out of the constant improvement of products and from the activities of the research department, has made the building program necessary, Mr. Everest explained. The Menasha Products company primarily is engaged in the manufacture, conversion and sale of paper and paper products designed and produced to meet the requirements of the food industry for automatic and scientific packaging and satisfactory delivery to the consumer. Sales of its products are made on a nation-wide basis, through its own sales force.

In 1939 net sales of the Menasha Products company amounted to approximately $6,643,000. By 1939 net sales had jumped to approximately $11,355,000. The firm anticipates a considerable increase in business in 1940, according to the budget and expectation of sales. The Menasha division now handles the sale goods manufactured by the corporation plants at Wausau, Rothschild and Ashland.

Huge Payroll

Employment also has increased from a staff of 639 in 1930 in only the Menasha division to 1,049 employees during 1939 for the division. In 1939 the firm paid approximately $1,133,000 in salaries and wages to employees of the Menasha division, while the payroll for 1939 totaled $1,759,000.

The company is proud of the stabilization of employment accomplished in the past several years. Mr. Everest, who also is president of the American Pulp and Paper association, declared.

"The vast majority of employees are now given full-time work. The peaks and valleys of employment have been ironed out, not only at the Menasha plant but also at all other Marathon plants." Dove-tailing seasonal jobs and development of new products helped give stability to employment.

Use Air Conditioning

The office building and the factory are completely air conditioned. Heating will be by a combination of steam radiation and forced air. Arrangements are provided for air cooling during the summer. This method of heating and air conditioning is expected to improve the health and working conditions of the employees, and will make possible the efficient handling of materials processed in the factory building.

The office is equipped with the new thermopane glass, a double-glazed material which is a recent development to be used especially in connection with air conditioning. It also eliminates the use of storm windows. Office and factory will have the newest and most modern heating equipment.

The office building will house the administrative offices of the sales, production and accounting departments, the engineering and personnel departments, and the entire clerical staff of the Menasha division. It provides much needed facilities for a growing office force that has been working in cramped quarters for some time.

Display Rooms

The basement of the office building will provide a display and sample room for all products of the Marathon company, as well as rooms for distribution of mail, express and office printing equipment such as mimeographs and multi-graph, and supplies.

The first floor will have a lobby and reception room as well as general administrative offices and offices for the purchasing agent, traffic manager, engineer, production manager, personnel manager, and credit union. The entire second floor will be given to the sales and sales promotion department.

The art department will be housed on the third floor, with all natural lighting from the north. An automatic light meter will be installed which will throw on lights inside the room as the natural light outdoors grows dim in the afternoon in order to provide uniform light at all times for the artists.

The third floor also will house the stenographic, accounting, cost and credit departments. All ceilings throughout the office building are being finished with metal acoustical tile.

WHY ANOTHER LEGISLATURE?

Again the Heil administration is put in an awkward spot by an interpretation by Attorney General Martin that the emergency relief appropriation enacted by the 1939 legislature is unconstitutional, that the law constitutes an invalid delegation of power by the legislature to the state emergency board.

Thus we have before us, a second time the question of the emergency board's position in state government, the nature of a governmental institution which has grown upon us without general notice in the last eight or ten years, and the effect of each succeeding year's emergency relief broader powers over state revenues and state expenditures through such a body were not contemplated in the Madison constitution.

It is perfectly obvious to the attorney general, as it was to the supreme court earlier, that when the legislature hands to the emergency board exclusive control over the expenditure of many millions of state funds, that legislature is abdicating a constitutional function.

It implies that the legislature is either too lazy or unable to determine the needs of state institutions and services, that it must delegate that duty and function to a subordinate body, a group in no way responsible to it. Both implications reflect unfavorably on the legislature. But what is more important, the creation and continued expansion of the functions of the board in effect foists upon us a new branch of government, one not responsible to the electorate per se, a quasi-legislative, quasi-executive arm abrogating the legitimate and traditional duties and responsibilities of the constitutional agencies of government.

Doubtless there were reasonable excuses for the creation of the emergency board, and once those excuses were made and accepted without general protest, equally plausible reasons for broadening its scope and power.

But is there any good reason to believe that of all our governmental units, only the state government should be unable to budget its needs adequately over annual or biennial periods, that only the state government should find it necessary to set aside huge sums of money for an emergency board to disburse at its own discretion and fancy?

Local governments find it possible to anticipate their annual demands, and to budget accordingly. While the federal government today, with its deficit financing, can scarcely be cited as an improvement, the government in Washington in normal times, and for normal purposes, finds it possible to budget accurately and does so.

It may be argued that certain extraordinary demands on the state treasury require the establishment of an emergency fund. But state experts have successfully estimated the needs of even such elastic governmental demands as relief and pensions. Certainly the state budget bureau ought to be able then to estimate how much money it will require to run the University of Wisconsin, the state prison, the state departments, and to require them to live within their income when it is established.

It is our hope that the attorney general's indictment of the emergency board system, and its program of extra-legislative spending, will signal the abolition of this new-fashioned creature of modern state government. Until we are ready to concede that the constitutional legislative system has atrophied, or until that has been proved and accepted by the electorate, we have no need of supplementary legislative bodies out of reach of the people and functioning without specific legal authority. The attorney general and the supreme court have interpreted the law with a proper concern for the public interest and our traditional institutions, and the governor will be wise to accept their dicta, even at the cost of temporary financial embarrassment.

WHAT A REAL ATTORNEY-GENERAL CAN DO

The good that men do lives after them, at least for a time.

Mr. Murphy brought to the federal legal department a bit of granite character that became all the more conspicuous due to the lack of that basic element in his predecessor.

Few people may remember who was attorney-general before Murphy. By way of explanation it was the man who tried to indict the aged Mr. Mellon without evidence or reason other than the howl of the radical wolves for meat, who dismissed the indictment against Jimmy Walker after the latter had returned from exile and on his bended knees admitted the omnipotence of Allah, and then quashed the indictments returned by a grand jury against the Louisiana political mobsters after they too had kissed the royal toe. Perhaps Harry Daugherty had a worse record but that is a matter of opinion.

When Mr. Murphy moved in he found it necessary to travel around the country to impress his many assistants that he wasn't playing to the gallery when he said he would have no truck with crooks or grafters. Party labels meant nothing to him when the whiff of corruption struck his sensitive nostrils. Graft did not become either polite or popular when carried on as a labor pretense. Few men have tossed so much manure out of the stables in so short a time as Murphy.

Given that sort of example makes the task ahead for Mr. Jackson much more simple.

Such is the power of precedent.

OUR COUNTRY NEIGHBORS

A group of farm men and women travel 25 miles in an evening over snow-laden roads to rehearse plays for a rural drama festival.

A Brown county apple-grower, a Richland county farm boy, and others in their spare time create works of art which win praise and surprised compliments from professional critics at an exhibit at the college of agriculture.

Farm boys in the winter season enroll in the university short course in agriculture, and learn not only how to lift the midget by making farming an up-to-date business, but for their extra hours direct courses in literature, American history, speech, music, and drama, so that they may be fit to return to positions of community leadership in their townships and villages.

In 4-H clubs, in Future Farmer chapters, in one and another organization the rural citizens of Wisconsin are expressing their faith in and love for the farm and its way of life. In Wisconsin, at least, the migration to the cities which not long ago was one of the trends to occupy the college professors who write thick volumes on sociology, no longer has the same appeal.

There is a new decision for the rural youth, a decision to make the farm not only a business, but a mode of life full of meaning and rich with not only material things but also the things which build the foundation for what is called culture, a realization among rural residents of the value of spending a part of their time to attain the benefits of social and esthetic living, to fulfill the deeper needs of their personalities.

When farm wives spend that extra hour to study and plan to make their homes more beautiful, when farm boys band together in clubs to modernize and make more attractive the farms which will be their life-time homes, they express and make real the deepest human urge for the values in originality, the values which constitute the basis of the best in American culture.

Rural America has been the nation's cradle since the winter winds whistled and the Indians howled around the country's pioneers. From the towns and villages of America have come the men who have given the nation its best in art, literature, government, business, and the other human enterprises upon which the American civilization has grown great.

One of the most important factors in the forward march of that civilization is the home life the American people have built around them from the earliest colonial days. The evidence of a dawning appreciation of rural family life in our own state, then, is important, for there is no culture more vital or important than that of the family in a setting of dignity and beauty, developing to the fullest the warm human relationships of understanding, appreciation and cooperative living.

One of the most worthy proofs of the state's interest in rural life is the current farm and home week program at the state college of agriculture. As farmers and their families were told there by a distinguished agricultural educator:

"Opportunity for development and the fullest expression of the individual personality is a precious asset in rural life. Cultural enrichment is especially important in a democracy, for democracy emphasizes the development of the individual personality."

"HALT!" CRIED THE THIEF

Grammarians will soon be forced to invent a new label for the particular type of uproarious humor being shipped out by infatuated propaganda agents of the various warring European nations.

The Communist press-agent who thought this one up would have his head promptly shaved off if the Soviet commissars knew what effect it produced in America.

An announcer from a Moscow station broadcast a threat in the Finnish language last weekend that Russia would declare war on the Finns unless they returned weapons "stolen" from Red army troops at Suomussalmi.

The "stolen" guns were those of the Russian 163rd and 44th divisions wiped out by the Finns on the central front. Russia has maintained up to the present that it was not making war on Finland since it recognized as the real government of Finland the supposed Communist regime set up in a small border town soon after the invasion began.

These dull Russians, the stolid Englishmen, the flighty French and the goose-stepping Germans are really getting a lot of unsuspected laughs out of Americans these days.

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—In her seven years as Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins has annoyed many persons, not the least of them her boss, Franklin D. Roosevelt. But no one has ever accused her of lacking forthrightness.

It's an inner administration secret, but recently she offered to retire from the cabinet. "You know," she told the president, "that my one interest is the success of your administration. If I've become a political handicap, or you think there would be a better chance to bring about peace between the AFL and CIO if I stepped out, I'm ready to resign immediately. And I need not tell you that I will depart just as much your friend as I have been in the past."

"Certainly I know that, Frances," replied Roosevelt in effect. "And you forget about resigning. It was grand of you to make this very generous offer, but I'll tell you when I want you to quit."

Note—Roosevelt probably wishes that a certain other cabinet member (Secretary of War Woodring) would be as forthright as Miss Perkins. But he won't because he knows the offer would probably be snapped up.

FEELING-TRAVELER John L. Lewis doesn't know it, but he has a strange fellow-traveler in boosting Senator Burt Wheeler for president.

He is none other than the man whom the CIO chief called a "poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, labor-baiting, civil old man"—John Nance Garner.

Of course, Garner is for himself first. But if he can't make it, then Wheeler will suit him fine. The vice president told this to Wheeler and a small group in his office recently.

"I'm in this race for keeps, all right," explained Garner, "but I won't be heart-broken if I don't get the nomination. I really don't want the presidency. It's a killing job and a mighty thankless one. What I really want to do is retire to my ranch and take things easy for the rest of my days."

"My real object in making this race is to stop a third term. I haven't got a thing against Roosevelt. I'm very fond of him, think he's a great fellow. But I'm against a third term regardless of who it is. I believe it's a dangerous precedent to establish, and I'm in this fight wholly for the purpose of preserving a principle."

"I know that you fellows think the same way as I do about this issue, and it would suit me all right if Burt, here, got the nomination. It would be okay with me and I'd be for him."

Later, in a man-to-man chat in Garner's office after they had "struck a blow for liberty," Garner went even further in declaring himself for Wheeler.

"Burt," he urged, "why don't you get into the race with both feet? I'm all for you."

"Forget it, Jack," demurred Wheeler. "I'm satisfied to stay in the senate. Furthermore, you're in this race yourself and I wouldn't want to do anything that would in any way hurt your chances."

"You won't hurt my chances, Burt," said Garner. "We're not running against each other. We're on the same side; and if I don't make it, I'd like to be able to turn to a man like you."

NEW YORK BONERS

The commissioners of New York city are a group of hard-working and dignified men. But at every meeting they go through the ceremony of awarding a jewel-case with a turkey-bone in it to the commissioner who has pulled the worst boner of the week.

One winner of the turkey-bone was Paul Kern, civil service commissioner, who offered to promote anyone who exposed inefficiency in New York government service, and then had to promote one of his own men for showing up inefficiency in civil service.

And last summer the turkey-bone went to Fire Commissioner Thomas McElhott for burning himself with a fire-cracker on the Fourth of July.

WPA UNIONS

Business is bad for the Workers Alliance. This organization of WPA workers, which certain members of congress tried to kill in the last session, is bleeding to death in some sections, looking very pale in others.

The knife that struck Workers Alliance was the 18-months clause in the last WPA appropriation, which provides that relief clients on the rolls 18 months or more should be dropped, not taken on again until re-certified—and made to await their turn under new quotas.

This action was aimed directly at Workers Alliance, whose members were the veterans of WPA. It was a reprisal against Alliance President David Lasser and Alliance Secretary Herbert Benjamin.

These men still hold their offices, with headquarters in Washington, but the organization is falling to pieces elsewhere. The president of the New Jersey branch, once one of the strongest in the country, is now reduced to a mere time-keeper's job on WPA, while the president of the New York branch is an unsuccessful applicant for a WPA job.

Meantime, WPA rank and file have lost confidence in the alliance from its failure to prevent enactment of the 18-months clause.

Note—WPA officials welcome a healthy organization among relief workers as a means of reporting unfair practices of labor foremen.

A Verse for Today

EARLY SERVICE

Only a few souls came today For the calm benison of prayer, For goodness flooded the dark way, For one who needed it was there.

We might have been oppressed by gloom Because there were so few to share The sacred silence of that room, But one who craved its balm was there.

The planning candles shone within One heart, relieving it of care, And better, gladder days begin Because one needing God was there.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington—Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith has served 31 years in the senate, rising from "baby" member to death left Smith the oldest member of the senate in point of service, although in years he is junior to Senator Glass of Virginia. Smith is 75, Glass 82.

But age hasn't modified Smith's southern sentiments. He is 200 pounds of southern wrath at everything the New Deal represents.

"I served under five Presidents," he said, "before I had to run into an awful life time, challenging the sovereignty of the states and violating the constitution at every step."

"Show me where the constitution says anything about the wage-hour bill or social security."

He isn't a tall man, but massive. His head is topped by a thick growth of gray hair. His face is deeply lined, and divided into squares and patches, like a farm, while in the middle is a brush of moustache you could hunt quail in. He gets so angry at what he calls the New Deal's "catering" to the negroes that, like Donald Duck, he almost bites himself.

"I have deeper love for our colored people than anybody in that outfit out there," he shouted across his desk, "but I've had experience with them and I know where they should be kept."

A 'Northern' Government

Referring to the New Deal as "that outfit out there," is the bitterest denunciation he can think of because to him it represents some contrivance of government from north of the Mason-Dixon line that no true American will endure longer than he has to.

Deep in him is a contented feeling that the New Deal will be thrown higher than a kite next November and he is content he had a pioneering part in its defeat. He was on the "purge list" in 1939, but he came through with flying colors in what he described as "the dirtiest campaign" of his experience.

"My victory set the pace," he said.

He knew how to conduct a campaign that would win in South Carolina. At the 1936 convention in Philadelphia he led the South Carolina delegation out of the hall when a negro preacher arose to give the benediction. The story he told about that affair echoed and re-echoed through the state in the campaign of 1938.

He came to the senate in what he calls the "days of the giants." Names like Elihu Root, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jonathan P. Dolliver, Albert Beveridge, Joseph Weldon Bailey, Nelson W. Aldrich and John Sharp Williams stand out in his mind far above the present legislative crop.

He remembers the first speech he made. It was against a ship subsidy bill. He said that if tariffs were lowered it would not be necessary to subsidize ships. "They built up the protective tariff so high that while we could send our ships abroad loaded they had to return empty."

Senate 'In A Mess'

He voted for war in 1917 and would do it again under like circumstances, "but not to send our boys overseas."

The "greatest speech" he ever heard in the senate was given in 20 minutes by Senator Bailey in 1913 on the constitution. Next to that he puts a speech by Senator Borah about three years ago against the anti-lynching bill.

"He upheld the right of a sovereign state to police its own people," said Cotton Ed.

Smith is geared to fight that battle all over again this year.

Of legislation he has sponsored he likes best a pre-war amendment to the Federal Reserve act permitting farmers to get currency secured by their imperishable crops, like cotton and wheat. That way they paid no interest. The law since has been repealed. But his bill regulating cotton trading is still on the books and he considers that pretty fine.

He owns a 2,000-acre plantation in South Carolina and in his library is the land grant covering it issued by King George III in 1747. His wife, Annie Farley Smith, daughter of a Confederate scout, wanted him to retire to the farm in 1938, "but when I told her I was under fire on the purge list, she said, 'Go in there and fight! That's the best fight I ever made.'"

He says he has never seen the senate in "such a mess" as now.

"It doesn't want to go any farther in the direction it has gone, but is afraid to turn back."

Just a Step Behind the News

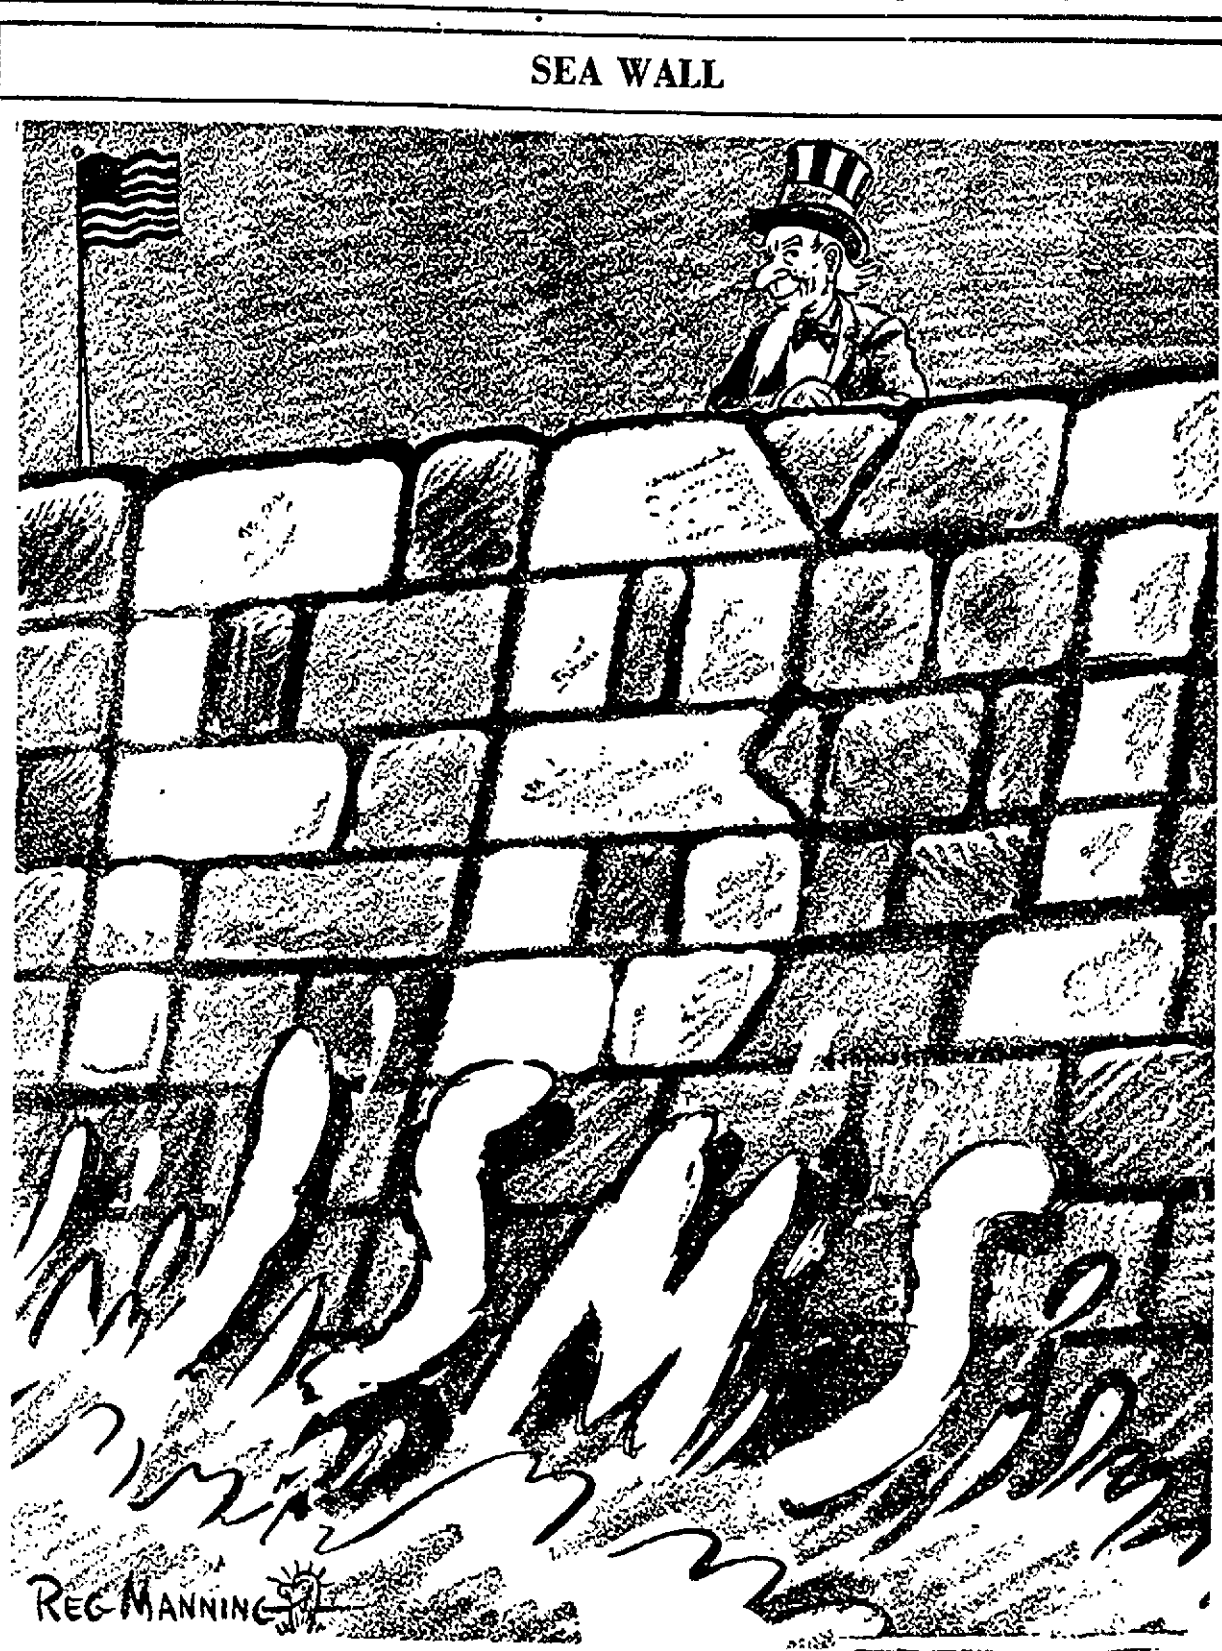

By Dave Boone

Well, the ground hog, no matter what anybody tells you, saw more shadows than he ever saw in his life. And it wasn't his own that scared him.

There's never been so many shadows. It's a bumper crop. And every shadow carried a gas mask. The ground hog was crazy to come out in the first place.

I understand he was pretty careful this year. He sent out some scouts first and when they didn't return he sent out a line of skirmishers. When they didn't report back he went out with a personal bodyguard, but merely to make good in a matter of tradition.

The United States supreme court just celebrated its 150th birthday.

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Commissioner Mark Catlin of Appleton, new and vigorous member of the state conservation commission, asserts that the February meeting of the commission is being transferred from Madison, the logical site, to Milwaukee, in order to prevent the publicity which the capitol press corps furnished at the last meeting of that body.

Wyngaard

Without discussing that statement—and this correspondent is inclined to think that Mr. Catlin knows whereof he speaks—the allegation brings up a subject which has more than once provoked disputes in the capitol between the newspapers and state department heads.

Most of the statutes creating boards and commissions which rule the huge and powerful state administrative agencies specifically provide that all meetings shall be open to the public. But over the years that provision has frequently been ignored, if not openly, then subtly by the handy device of declaring an "executive session."

POLICY BOARDS

The state boards and commissions are policy-forming bodies. In that sense they are legislative bodies, laying down rules and principles which have all the effect of law and profoundly affect the body politic. The rule of holding executive sessions is a means of barring the public those boards are supposed to represent, with whose affairs they are dealing from a knowledge of what transpires behind their closed doors. And the situation is not remedied when a department employee later distributes carefully censored and innocuously phrased details of the meetings.

In one important capitol commission, particularly, the release prepared by publicity men on the payroll too often ignore the vital points of discussions by commissioners. The effect, in some instances, is to deny a voice to members who have been so important a few years ago. But today, with each new legislature abrogating sweeping authority in broad fields of state policy to boards of laymen, it has become a vital point.

The board of public welfare in a practical sense is the legislature in the field of pensions, relief, institutions, hospitals, child aid, in the whole big field of public charity. The board of agriculture legislates on subjects affecting deeply 200,000 dairy farmers. The state conservation commission's rules and regulations concern not only several hundred thousands of hunters and fishermen, but every citizen because of the general overhauling, removal of carbon, general lubrication and new paint job. It looks almost as good as new. But I understand Mr. Roosevelt still thinks it needs a snapper radiator ornament and some gay pennants.

John Barrymore is back in New York getting the headlines again after many years. John has been doing a big business in a play by making up a good many of his lines as he goes along. I understand there is nothing to the report that John is going to do Hamlet in double-talk.

SEA WALL

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

INJECTION TREATMENT

A reader who doesn't want anything takes the trouble to write a letter. This does not happen as often as it should. Great majority of people procrastinate even if they feel the impulse to report their experience with methods, remedies or doctors I have recommended, and as time passes they generally forget it. Not this reader, who writes:

Dear Doctor Brady: Last winter I asked you to recommend a physician to treat hydrocele. Two physicians had ascribed me the only cure was operation in hospital. My hydrocele was as large as a grapefruit. You recommended Dr. —, who gave me exactly four jabs of the needle and I was all fixed up, no pain, no inconvenience, no loss of work or blood, no hospital expense, and this fine doctor's fee for the treatment amounted to little more than one would have to pay for hospitalization alone.

I have waited eight months to feel certain there would be no recurrence before reporting to you about it. My purpose in writing is to let you know how grateful I feel for having read your article on the subject and for your recommendation of such a skillful man. May I also suggest more publicity for this method of treatment, instead of the apparent secrecy with which it seems to be enshrouded. This applies as well to the diathermy method with which my tonsils were successfully removed six years ago after three surgical failures.

(W. F. L.) The secrecy enshrouding the ambulatory or injection treatment of hemorrhoids (piles), varicose veins, hernia (rupture, breach) and hydrocele (accumulation of clear serum or watery fluid in serosal sac) is scarcely apparent in this column. My goodness, haven't I harped in these modern methods in season and out of season these many years?

Perhaps some readers hear what I say but do not heed it, because they still get quaint opinions from practitioners who have not yet acquired the rather difficult technique of the injection treatment. Such practitioners are too often inclined to assure the credulous layman that the newfangled the conservation and multiplication of the state's resources. Denial of the fullest publicity to their activities, and even their discussions, is a denial of the people's right to be informed on the deeds of their lawmakers.

ZIMMERMAN. Many persons have wondered at the cause of the bad feeling between Secretary of State Zimmerman and Gov. Heil. Some of the second-guessers have assumed erroneously it was due to Zimmerman's ambition to be governor again, but then they could not explain why he should want to be put in the position of stopping relief and pension payments, presumably not good politics, by throwing legal hurdles in the path of Heil.

Best explanation of the situation is that Zimmerman is encouraged ardently by certain powerful Milwaukee interests who have been angered by Heil, who want to see him embarrassed, and whom Zimmerman is willing to court. A good example of how official Milwaukee, for example, feels toward Heil, can be had by reading some of the explosive comments on Heil's denial of about a half million dollars in relief aids by his relief bill veto, and another half million in highway aids by his highway diversion program, but of which put city and courthouse circles in Milwaukee behind the eight ball in their budgeting.

10 YEARS AGO Saturday, Feb. 1, 1930 Mayor A. C. Rule announced Saturday morning, upon his return from Chicago, where he was elected president of the Mallot Grocery company, that he would be a candidate for reelection that spring.

Business conditions in Appleton were better than they were at that time the previous year, according to Kenneth E. Corbett, chamber of commerce secretary.

A loss of $5,000 was suffered at the Hauer chicken farm, route 4, Appleton, about 2 o'clock morning when fire of unknown origin destroyed a large chicken coop and 900 chickens.

25 YEARS AGO Saturday, Feb. 6, 1915 A free employment bureau had been established by the United States department of labor.

Appleton stood third among the cities of the state in the amount spent each year on the education of its children, according to the annual school calendar of the American Book company. The amount spent on each pupil in the city was $46.70 while at Eau Claire, which was first it was $51 and Madison $46.90. For the first time since last Monday, telephone service was resumed with Milwaukee that day. The clothing store of L. E. Sugerman was undergoing extensive interior alterations.

Republican Group Names Delegates To State Meeting

Favors Uninstructed Candidate Group; Hears Talk by Sen. Wiley

Outagamie county Republicans last night at the courthouse voted against instructed candidate delegates, named delegates to the state mid-winter convention at LaCrosse and heard a plea for party unity by Senator Alexander Wiley.

Mark Catlin, Jr., opened the discussion on having instructed or uninstructed delegates by announcing his resignation as a Vandenberg delegate candidate. He used party unity and harmony and moved that the county committee refrain from taking sides as an official body in the candidate race. The motion was adopted following further discussion by other Republican members.

Senator Wiley spoke on party organization and said that there was no reason there should not be complete harmony in the party in the state as the individual groups are seeking the same goal.

Delegates Named

The following delegates were named to the mid-winter convention: Elmer Honkamp, Oscar Schmiede, the Rev. A. A. Vissers, Stephen Peeters, John Hantschel, Fred Rank, P. J. Fieweger, John Lappen, Emil Dietzler, Ben Rideout, Lloyd Lang, Mrs. Catherine Jens, Mrs. Mary Hanges, Mrs. C. L. Kolb, Mrs. Clara Babb, Edgar V. Werner, William Zuelke and C. C. Kolb. Several other delegates will be named by Dr. C. L. Kolb, county chairman, who presided at last night's meeting. In the event that the county is not represented by a full quota of delegates at the convention, absentee votes will be cast on the basis of the delegate vote at the meeting.

The county delegates will oppose endorsement of any slate of candidates at the state meeting.

A resolution commemorating Orville G. Hezner, member of the state central committee, who died recently following an automobile accident which occurred as he was on his way to a Republican meeting at Stevens Point was adopted by a unanimous vote. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, the beneficent Creator has in His infinite wisdom removed from our midst a loyal, true and esteemed member, and whereas, we who are left will sadly miss a valued friend and helper; be it resolved: that the Outagamie County Republican committee spread on the minutes of the organization this resolution in commemoration of Orville G. Hezner, a true and worthy Republican."

Madden Approves Garrison's Plan

Man Madden of the board said with a smile:

"I can't say whether my inclination to agree with Mr. Garrison arises out of inspiration or exhaustion."

Garrison, former head of the old NRA labor board, said that if the present board were relieved of the necessity of settling A. F. L.-C. I. O. disputes it "would remove at one stroke nine-tenths of the criticism."

Meanwhile, questions by Smith, some other committee members, and Edmund Toland, counsel indicated they were thinking about these possible additional amendments to the Wagner act.

Restrictions of picketing in labor disputes.

Prohibition of use of union funds in political campaigns.

Requirements of a "waiting period" before strikes.

Prohibition of strikes that would close down power services, public utilities, hospitals and similar essential public services.

A requirement that employers and unions show "some responsibility" under labor agreements.

A requirement that labor agreements be written.

All of these suggestions were tossed at Garrison, who advised against most of them.

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Light to moderate snow tonight and Sunday forenoon; warmer tonight.

GENERAL WEATHER

Light snow has fallen since yesterday morning over the New England states and rain or snow over the central and southern plains states and rain along the Pacific coast. However, generally fair weather prevailed this morning over all the central and southern states.

It was colder this morning over the central and southern portions of the country, with freezing temperature extending as far south as Jacksonville, Fla. Madison, Wis., reported a minimum of -7 degrees this morning and La Crosse, -2 degrees. However, temperatures are rising over the northern Rocky mountains.

Snow is expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with rising temperature tonight.

Woman Given Divorce

Marie Gorow, 40, 530 N. Garfield place, was granted a divorce from Carl Gorow, 47, Appleton, by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon on a charge of cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple married at Menominee, Mich., Aug. 3, 1920 and separated last month.

Says Public Works Should be Placed On Open Bid Basis

prise. In other words, if government is going to spend its money, let the taxpayers of the nation get the business.

Should go to Low Bidder

"If public works construction has to go on to meet future emergencies," he continued, "then such work should be awarded to the lowest qualified bidder."

He said that "the risk taker in private business is the beneficiary that the nation needs and we must give credit to the individual who experiments with his own for the good of the public."

"We know that the building construction industry enters the new year with the prospect of increasing gains that will contribute to the general flow of industrial activity. Probably the potential gain in building trade volume will be about five to 10 per cent over 1939. Of course, the profit margins are widening so that should mean an even larger gain in earnings—this means incentive to spur eager men on. Government must not put on the brakes."

The Wisconsin senator asserted that "the solution of your business must come from government; it must come from private industry—a private industry showing an increased volume and expanding and modernizing its equipment to handle domestic orders."

Sees Upswing

He warned "there won't be any miracles" and remarked: "But construction in '39 was 160 per cent above the low point in the past decade, so it looks as though the upswing in the building cycle is definitely begun."

The convention in its meeting yesterday afternoon went on record favoring a lowering of wage scales on the building of residences, as compared with the construction of industrial units, and voted to place this request before building trades unions. The resolution covering this item stated the belief that a lowering of wages would more than be offset by the increase in residential building.

Another resolution adopted yesterday called for "revision of the revenue law" so that companies can spend a larger portion of their earned income on plant expansion, a proviso that was aimed at the undistributed profits tax.

The convention opposed the merit rating system in unemployment insurance and asked that the construction industry be placed "in parity" with other industries in this respect. Another resolution seeks a change in the unemployment insurance law so that it covers all contractors who have one or more men working for them. The law at present exempts those who have less than six employees.

Vote Studies

Delegates voted to appoint two committees to make new studies for the state organization. One committee will work with the Wisconsin chapter of the American Institute of Architects in drawing up a "residential code", a set of uniform standards in the building of homes. The other committee will be asked to study the possibility of setting up a "residential certification service" so that those who want to buy homes can find out details of their construction.

A file system containing details on the construction of new homes would be set up and this agency would work in cooperation with loan associations and banks, making it possible for prospective buyers to know the type of construction on homes in which they were interested.

H. L. Bowly of Appleton was toastmaster at the banquet at which Green and W. H. Giesner of Appleton, president of the Appleton chapter of Wisconsin Constructors, Inc., spoke.

At the afternoon session, the delegates heard a talk on "Trade Relations and Unemployment" by Arthur Olson of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor.

2 Fined for Operating Trucks With Overloads

Two truckers pleaded guilty of operating overloaded trucks and were fined by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. The truckers are Arden Chapra, route 1, Black Creek, who was fined $10 and costs, and Milton Crosson, Shawano, who was fined $5 and costs. County police made the arrests.

Appleton Streets How They Were Named

Nawada street—From Winona court to St. Joseph cemetery, three blocks north of Fox river.

Nawada is an Indian word said to mean "sweet singer."

Newberry street—From S. Oneida street northeast then east to the city limits.

Named for Newman L. Newberry, who held the first government patent in what is now Appleton in 1937 giving him possession of nearly all the land in the lower old Fourth ward.

North street—From N. Oneida street to the Fox river, four blocks north of College avenue.

Named thus because it was the northern boundary of Lawesburg as it was laid out in the first plat.

Snow Predicted Tonight, Sunday

Bright Sun Raises Mercury From 4 Above to 29 Degrees Today

Under the influence of a bright sun, temperatures rose rapidly this morning and a good deal of thawing was in evidence. Mercury in the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building climbed to 28 degrees this noon from a low mark of 4 above at 7:30 this morning. The highest reading during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning was 30 degrees at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Light to moderate snow is predicted tonight and Sunday morning with warmer temperatures tonight.

Maximum and minimum temperatures in the nation during the last 24 hours were at Madison, Wis., with 7 degrees below zero and 74 degrees at Miami, Fla., according to the Associated Press.

Security Board Is In Favor of Higher Unemployment Pay

Washington — The social security board told congress today that it favored the liberalization of unemployment compensation benefits to insured jobless wage-earners in states where compensation tax receipts exceed benefit expenditures.

The board suggested that in such states the weekly benefit payment could be made larger and the period over which benefits are payable could be extended.

Jobless insurance standards are fixed by state laws as part of a state unemployment compensation plan which is subject to broad federal standards.

The board's stand in favor of liberalization, taken in its annual report, came on the heels of demands by both the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. that jobless workers covered by the law be given more adequate protection from involuntary idleness.

The state systems now provide weekly compensation from a minimum of $2 to a maximum of $18. The average payment is $10.65 and the duration of payments is as much as 26 weeks in two states. Most state paying periods range from 12 to 16 weeks.

The A. F. of L. has asked that the maximum be lifted to $24 a week for 20 weeks, and has suggested uniform benefit standards for all states.

Broughton Calls Meeting of State Democrats, Feb. 12

Outagamie County Will Not be Represented At Convention

A state conference of Democrats has been called by Charles E. Broughton, national committeeman, at Wisconsin Rapids Feb. 12 for the purpose of recommending four delegates from 10 congressional districts.

Gustave J. Keller, president of the new liberal Democratic Party organization of Wisconsin, which last Sunday held a state convention and selected delegates, and also Outagamie county Democratic chairman, said the county will not be represented at the meeting called by Broughton.

In his call for the convention Broughton said:

"In order to make this conference truly representative of the great rank and file, those who are with President Roosevelt and believe in and are willing to subscribe to his policies and his delegates recommended by this conference, we would ask that meetings be held during the coming week, so that each county will be represented."

Former Resident of City Wins Cleveland Clark Gable Contest

Ray Van Ooyen, 23, formerly of Appleton, has been crowned Cleveland's "Rabbit Butler."

Van Ooyen won a contest sponsored by a newspaper and theater in Cleveland to find the man in that city who most resembles Clark Gable.

The contest was held in connection with the showing of "Gone With the Wind."

The young man is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Van Ooyen, who resided in Appleton up to about seven or eight years ago when they moved to Cleveland.

The Cleveland contest also included competition for the title of the city's "Scarlett O'Hara." Van Ooyen and the young lady who was chosen as having the closest resemblance to Vivien Leigh won tickets to the show, $25 in cash and a dinner at a fancy hotel.

Signs Point to Crisis in State Welfare Program

Heil Aid Speaks Confidently of Alternative Relief Plan, However

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The fate of the state government's relief program remained uncertain today, pending the return of Governor Heil to the capitol Monday, but there were signs that a crisis is probable in the state welfare program due to lack of available funds for direct relief aids to counties which depend heavily on the state government to sustain their local relief loads.

Although Charles McKeown, Heil's financial secretary, this week spoke confidently of an alternative plan to meet state relief needs after the attorney general had ruled unconstitutional the legislative relief act appropriating $3,000,000, close examination of state fiscal facts by competent authorities indicated that there may be more trouble ahead for the administration which has plodded doggedly through a literal sea of financial crises in the last year.

When Attorney General Martin pronounced the relief appropriation act unconstitutional, McKeown announced substitute plans so promptly as to raise the question whether the governor's office had not expected the ruling.

Outlines Program

He quickly outlined a program of using anticipated receipts of relief taxes enacted in 1937, and effective through 1941, in the amount of about $900,000 for this year, plus the balance of the appropriation granted to the state emergency board to supplement regular budget allotments for pensions, state disbursements, schools, and other divisions of the state government.

He announced that since the executive office contemplated spending only $1,800,000 in relief aids this year, the relief taxes plus the remainder of the emergency board's own fund would be adequate to carry the state's share of the relief load.

That plan, however, has three big question marks:

1. The relief taxes at present have an accrued balance in the treasury of only $33,000. Appropriations from their receipts, therefore, will not be possible immediately — although relief aids are demanded by the counties every month—and will be available only as they are collected during the year.

2. A large part of the emergency board's fund has already been verbally earmarked by Governor Heil to make up what will almost certainly be a deficiency in old-age pensions, while certain other state department, including the university, will be clamoring to share in it this year and next.

3. Many persons believe that the constitutional question which ruled out the original relief appropriation will also render invalid the unrestricted control by the emergency board of its own appropriation. As one capitol authority expressed it, "the emergency board cannot do with its right hand what the supreme court has said it cannot do with its left."

Moreover, there is a big question still unsettled and one which governor's office advisers show no willingness to discuss — the requirements of the 1937 relief act under which the administration now plans to proceed that the state shall reimburse all counties for five per cent of their relief costs.

The governor's relief plan as described by McKeown contemplates the allocation of about $150,000 a month for the year to hard-hit counties in northern Wisconsin and certain industrial centers in the southern part of the state, on a strictly emergency basis. There is no specific basis of distribution, and the majority of counties will receive nothing in relief help.

Zimmerman May Balk

If the administration ignores the requirement to pay 5 per cent to all, therefore, it will open up another opportunity for Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, who has already thrown up half a dozen legal obstacles in Heil's path on important questions, to halt the new program.

At the same time if the administration follows that requirement, its relief funds will be insufficient, for it will require the disbursement of an additional $600,000 at least. The total local relief costs this year are not expected to fall below $12,000,000, and with current expenditures climbing up toward $15,000,000 a month, the total probably will be even higher.

Thus the state relief picture today remained extremely chaotic and complicated.

There is still a possibility, however, that Governor Heil may choose next week to carry the attorney general's ruling to the supreme court, although Martin's interpretation was based on a supreme court decision only a year old.

Catlin Drops Out Of Delegate Race

Assemblyman Says He Can Support G.O.P. Best By Withdrawal

Mark S. Catlin, Jr., at a meeting of county Republicans last night announced his withdrawal as the Eighth Congressional district delegate candidate to the national Republican convention on the Vandenberg ticket.

The Vandenberg-For-President club of Wisconsin announced today that Catlin will be replaced by Winford H. Johnson, Kiel, as the Vandenberg running mate of Richard P. Murray, Marinette mayor, in the Eighth district.

"My withdrawal is made with the objective of unifying and collecting the total forces of the Republican party and thus emphasizing the fact that the delegate race is of secondary importance to the 1940 election," Catlin said.

He said he became a candidate with the thought of promoting harmony at a time when it appeared the Eighth district would give 100 per cent support to two "harmony" candidates.

"Nothing must happen before, or at the LaCrosse convention to disrupt the unity of the party."

"I can best work before the convention, at the convention and during the coming election in the interests of the Republican party by withdrawing from the delegate race," Catlin said.

Often Better To Throw Off Losing Card

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When the defeat of a contract depends on one of the defenders overruling the declarer, the best technique demands that the first card defensive tricks be cashed at an early stage. With declarer's defense risk being overruled, it is best to avoid it with the simple technique of discarding a low card instead of ruffing.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

This handy carry-all of transparent shell is fitted with mirror, comb, powder well, lipstick and space for cigarettes not to mention a luxurious swansdown puff which should be fresh daily.

Any girl and woman who is seriously interested in keeping her skin flawless will see that her powder puff is changed daily in the compact she carries, and that fresh cotton or a new puff is used in the powder jar at home.

If you drag out a soiled puff for powdering in the presence of others your personal daintiness will undoubtedly be questioned, but that is not all. A soiled puff has accumulated waste which your facial pores have discharged, old powder and dust. By using the same puff on your skin again and again, you are forcing impurities into the skin pores and in less time than you realize tiny blemishes, or a skin rash will appear.

Today the trend is to give your personal powder puff as much attention as any other aid pertinent to your beauty, comfort and daintiness. You take a fresh handkerchief each time you go out, do you not, so why not a fresh puff?

Frequent changing of puffs is not expensive. You may buy quantities of small puffs for little money which may be discarded after use. Or, if you like the swansdown puffs, they are easily cleaned by washing them in sudsy water, rinsing and drying in the sun. If you own a dozen, you can take a clean one each day and have them laundered regularly just as your gloves and handkerchiefs are laundered regularly.

Change Powder Too
It isn't a good idea to fill a compact full of powder and use it until the last grain. Far better for your skin beauty if you put fresh powder into the compact well each day, or every other day. Just enough—no surplus. Today powder in blended and mixed to match your skin tone. Sometimes it takes several shades of powder shaken together to create for you a flattering color. These tiny specks of color can and do sit to the bottom of the compact well (or your powder jar) and frequent shaking is necessary to keep them all nicely blended. Then too as you powder your face, and dip the puff into the powder after taking soil and dust from your skin, you are bound to leave tiny deposits of impurities in the powder.

Well made puffs of lamb's wool may be washed time and time again without losing any of their softness. Some of them come in cellophane boxes which are nice to keep so you may put in them the freshly shampooed puffs.

It truly pays to be very sanitary with your aids for skin beauty. And it takes so little time, once you acquire the habit, that there is little excuse to use soiled puffs, face cloths, or messy compacts!

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

When you think of a bully, you normally visualize a boy of grammar school age who intimidates his smaller companions, but here is a feminine bully who is typical of a certain type of woman who tries to fight a younger woman by resorting to malingerings in the hope of holding the man in the case. This is an all too common triangle which endangers happy marriage.

CASE P-172: Hulda W., aged 52, has an only son who plans to marry.

"My mother had some sort of heart attack just before our wedding date," he announced.

"She got better in a few weeks, but we postponed our marriage. Now that we are settled on a new date, my mother has had a turn for the worse."

"I called in a specialist, who said her heart was O. K. She claims, however, that she doesn't know what he is talking about, and now has no more use for any physician."

"She looks so frail and helpless, though, and seems to be suffering so much. I don't know whether we should go ahead with our marriage plans or not. Dr. Crane, what would you recommend?"

DIAGNOSIS
Hulda is a good example of the fact that medicine and psychology are so closely intertwined that it is impossible to separate them.

Two months and considerably less than three, and look extremely well.

Love Is Underlying Cause For Most Family Nagging

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Are mothers ever justified in nagging? If my sons go out in the rain without rubbers and catch cold and get sick, don't I have to take care of them? If they do not save their money, don't I have to keep them in feed when they are out of work? If they get into trouble, don't I have to get them out of it? It is the mother who always has to foot the bill. People say, "Tell a child once and let it go at that," but what good does telling a child anything once do? I am a nag because my children force me to be.

DISCOURAGED.

Dorothy Dix

A famous psychologist says that the reason women nag is their desire for prominence and their effort to dominate their families. No doubt this is true, but I think that there is a still stronger motive behind their nagging. It is love.

And the nagging that is inspired by love and by the desire to help the children and protect them and to develop them into fine men and women ends in such disaster! It kills the affection of the husband for his wife and only too often sends him out in search of some woman who isn't a perpetual fault-finder, and who treats him as if he were an intelligent human being instead of a morose child. It keeps the children from giving their mother the love that would be the reward of all the sacrifices she has made for them, and it drives them away from home as soon as possible, so that they may be free of Mother's nagging and be allowed a little personal liberty and privacy. If that isn't tragedy, I don't know what is.

Furthermore, although the nagging woman is her undoing and does more to break up her home than all the platinum blondes in the world, she has her jurisdiction, to a certain extent. For it is only too true that you cannot form a child's character, nor his habits, nor his manners by one swift master stroke. It has to be done little by little, through years of ceaseless effort, by line upon line and precept upon precept, by Mother's nagging. Mother has to tell Johnny 10,000,000 times to take off his hat when he speaks to a lady before he does it of his own accord. But in the end she turns out a gentleman.

Nagging is bitter medicine for a family to take, but it is salutary. And it is a pity that they do not feel properly grateful to the doctor who administers the dose.

Human Nature Doesn't Alter
Dear Miss Dix—How can a girl who has been a man's mistress for some time make him marry her? He says he doesn't love me and doesn't want me to love him, but I do. I want him more than anything in the world. How can I make him want me? Just when I think he is weakening and maybe I'll get him, something intervenes and it doesn't happen. He is good to me, but that isn't enough. I want a home and children. Now don't bawl me out for having loose morals. It is just that I am modern and have a different opinion of right and wrong from you old-fashioned folks. What I want to know is how can I get my man?

Bewildered.
Answer: Well, Bewildered, the fact that you are what you call "modern" hasn't changed the work in producing sympathy and solicitude, plus deferred marriage dates. We call this malingerings, or subconscious feigning of an ailment. Her son should resolve to go ahead with his marriage. Never let a parental bully jeopardize a child's legitimate happiness.

In cooking eggs and egg dishes temperature is most important. When the protein in egg is heated it coagulates or becomes firm. If this heating takes place slowly, evenly, at a moderate temperature, the eggs will be tender when they are done. But with high temperature the protein in them shrinks and makes the eggs tough.

The Ambulance Racket
In our large cities the "ambulance chasers" have developed quite a racket, built upon such malingerings. Unscrupulous lawyers, without enough legitimate practice to make ends meet, will quickly get in touch with every accident case.

They soon "sell" the injured person on the fact that he is probably much more seriously hurt than the doctors tell him. They frighten him by wild tales about "internal injuries" which don't show up for years and years.

Then they tell supposedly true stories of men who were injured in childhood, but didn't think much of the accident, only to find that cancer had developed in the interval.

By this time they have the accident victim thinking he is really near death's door. It isn't difficult to persuade him to sue for a huge sum, with the lawyer taking his large commission of whatever settlement he can win for the client.

Malingering Patients
Sometimes people who have nothing but a few superficial scratches, will begin to develop all sorts of supposed ailments of an internal sort until they are bedridden or hobbling about on crutches.

They seldom get well until a financial settlement or the Supreme Court has disposed of the case.

Many people are suffering from such induced ailments which are subconsciously developed to further an ulterior end. Hulda's heart attacks happen to be purely psychological in nature.

She had a real "heartache" at the thought of losing her only son to a young woman. This "heartache" quickly became synonymous with "heart trouble," which diverted attention from its psychological origin.

World Still Needs Trained Youth Despite Depression

BY ANGELO PATRI

Many fathers and mothers are looking forward to Tomorrow for their children, with dread in their hearts and fear in their minds. "Why bring children into such a world? Nothing but trouble; no work, no money, no hope. Nothing but taxes, and the threat of wars. What have our children to look forward to?"

All of life. Just what you had to look forward to when you were young. Nobody assured you of safety. Maybe you felt safer then because there was no radio, no television flashing every twitter of every jittery person in every nook and cranny of earth to your private ear. Yet was came in your time. And peace, too. And in your day the sun rose in morning splendor; the birds sang; grass grew and water ran; you laughed and cried and worked and played. And in the Tomorrow just about to come over the horizon, your child will do the same.

Maybe it is small comfort, but it is certainly a fact that nothing has happened to us that has not happened to somebody else beforetime. Nothing can happen to our children that has not happened to other folks' children in days gone by. And yet the world kept on its way, and its people lived on through good days and bad to enjoy their lives even more than their fathers enjoyed theirs.

Once I lived through a panic. It was not called a depression in that day. Work was scarce and money scarce. Fathers and mothers were hard put to it to feed their children. There were no W.P.A.'s, nothing but neighborly kindness and an occasional church benefit to help the suffering people. But nobody thought it possible to stop sending boys and girls to school. The whole community looked forward to the time when this thing would pass and new opportunities would offer themselves to their well-prepared children.

Did our parents know what to prepare us for? They did not. They had faith that we would be needed in the nation's business, so they did all they could to train us into people who could and who would serve when and where opportunity offered. And that was what we did, what you did.

Tomorrow is in doubt. Tomorrow was always in doubt to the extent of its particular needs being secret. But its general, its basic need is no secret. Tomorrow will need men and women of trained intelligence, seasoned souls, adaptable minds, unclassified, unprejudiced workers. To that end the part of wisdom is to train our boys and girls to work intensively at whatever their hands find to do. To think no learning however difficult, to evade no discipline no matter how strict, to count no human experience as trifling or below their dignity. Teach them that the richer the furnishing of their minds the more power they will exert on and in their time, and help them to that end.

A sound general education is something to covet for our children. Any child capable of taking it should have it. After that the best technical training in whatever field they choose should be offered them. I have no doubt whatever that well-educated, well-trained, thoroughly grounded young men and women with vision and purpose will be in great demand Tomorrow and the Day after, forever.

There is no need to be discouraged about Youth's future. Prepare for it. Encourage children to prepare for it. We are not asked to suffer anything that others have not suffered before us. Are we so weak?

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

One Is Beloved BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

YESTERDAY: Bob tries to convince Sue that his marriage with Cecily meant nothing. She says she would never have married him if she'd known about it.

Chapter 20
Cecily's Experiment

"Then, in spite of what you may feel about it now, Sue, I'm glad you didn't know," he said almost savagely. "You're mine, my wife—and after a while you'll understand. We'll put the whole thing out of our minds. Sweet, you've been happy with me? Our marriage has been a success?"

"Nothing is a success that's founded on deceit, Bob. Don't you see—can't you see?—I—I—you're a stranger to me; not my husband at all. The man I thought I was marrying would be incapable of this terrible thing. Ours—in the real sense—isn't a marriage at all!"

"That's nonsense, Sue. You're talking like a silly, idealistic school girl. I'm exactly what you believed me to be last June—what I've been since you first saw me. It's the boy who married Cecily who's the stranger; as such a stranger to me as he could possibly be to you! Snap out of it, darling! We're both making tragedy out of the flimsiest kind of fancy. It's all in the past, anyhow. Give your husband a kiss, and let Cecily slip back into the oblivion from which she should never have emerged."

His brazen tone did her good. It was true that what was done was done, she reminded herself. Nothing she could say, or feel, or even do would alter the situation in the slightest. Her job was to make of her marriage the best relationship possible. Hearing reproaches on Bob's head would help nobody. She could never feel quite the same toward him. He would never be to her the wise and splendid young man with whom she had been first, but that was her own private trial to be borne.

"It's all been smooth sailing so far," she mused. "Bob's given me everything and I've accepted it because I'm his wife. I must accept this—this distasteful knowledge for the same reason. I've preached a lot to Allen about overlooking the things in Pats he dislikes. I'd better do a little practicing for a change now."

She leaned forward docilely and kissed him.

"I expect I have been making a mountain out of a molehill. Bob, or not that quite? It's a blow—knowing you've been married before, knowing you've kept the fact to yourself all this time. But I agree that being angry about it won't undo it."

Incredulous joy shone in his face.

"You forgive me, sweet?"

She rested her cheek against his wearily. "Not forgive so much, as try to forget."

Puzzling Behavior
She walked with him to the car the next morning, her hand in his arm down the long flagged walk that led to the street. She was cheerful though her eyes were shadowed, and she had not regained her own healthy color. Bob, seated at the wheel, leaned down for a last word.

"Cecily will probably come to the office this morning, sweet. You realize that, don't you?"

She nodded. It seemed to her of supreme unimportance what Cecily did now. Yesterday's devastation had been too great to permit of additional hurt.

city did now. Yesterday's devastation had been too great to permit of additional hurt.

But she as well as Bob was puzzled by Cecily's behavior in the days, the actual weeks and months that followed.

For the former Mrs. Robert Trenton did not resume her interrupted journey Eastward, but lingered on in St. Joseph. She stayed at her hotel for a week or two, then moved into a small apartment, and eventually to a furnished house which she stocked with servants.

"Because I like it here," she said gaily in answer to Bob's annoyed questions. "This is a charming town. I don't wonder you decided to settle here." And as he scowled his disapproval: "It's a free country, my dear." She reminded him.

He knew by this time that a fundamental mischief actuated her. Only twenty-four years old, she had traveled too much, lived too hard, known too many undisciplined men and women among the moving picture folk in California. The sedate placidity of the old Southern town tempted her to gamin-like experiment.

She had been deeply amused at the ripple her very presence here had caused among Bob's friends. She wired various intimates in the East and in California for letters of introduction and soon the Country Club set was calling on her; and not only calling on her but entertaining her, somewhat to their own surprise.

She was pretty, she was amusing, her clothes were new and exciting. These were always dramatic possibilities when she and the young Trentons were invited to the same affairs.

Sue faced the situation with the pretty dignity which was innate with her. They called each other "Cecily" and "Sue," exchanged amiable remarks when they found themselves together; but not even Barbara Webb had the temerity to discuss Bob's first wife with his second.

"Sue, I'm getting any punishment that was coming to me for deceiving you about her," Bob said one evening. It was significant that he never referred to Cecily by name. Nor did Sue need to ask whom he meant by "she" and "her." "You'd think she'd have better taste than to select this one town out of all America to stay in; live in, so far as I know. She's bought a car!"

"She'll tire of it after a while," Sue told him quietly. They were driving to the Club where, they both knew, it was more than likely they would encounter Cecily. "It's a thrill to her, that's all, being here with you—and me. No one pays any attention to divorce or remarriage in California, you know, so I suppose the mild shock she causes here entertains her. She'll get tired of it and leave pretty soon. Meanwhile—"

"Meanwhile she's putting you through a devilish hard time," he said hotly. "Don't think I don't realize how difficult it is for you, sweet. I do. That's why I say I'm getting mine for concealing the truth from you. She can't hurt me except through you, and she knows it, darn her!"

"Oh, no Bob! She's not in the least malicious. She's probably thinks I'm as amused as she is. It isn't for Patsy—she stopped abruptly."

"Perfect Weapon!"

"What's Patsy got to do with it? She doesn't even know her, does she?"

"They're—met," she replied slowly. "Patsy is terribly taken with her."

"Patsy would be! I'll drop a word to Allen—"

"She clutched his arm. 'Bob, you shan't! Think what a perfect weapon it would give Patsy against me!'"

He was puzzled. "Why on earth should Patsy need a weapon against you? Everybody knows what an angel you've been to her. And I'll say for Patsy, she went on with masculine blindness, 'that at last she's begun to appreciate you! She told me not long ago that you were more like a sister to her than her own are. No, if Patsy is having any thing to do with—her, it's because she's got some distorted idea of loyalty to you and me. Better put her right on the subject, sweet!'"

Sue was silent. Patsy had hated Mrs. Meade Trenton's advent with—figuratively speaking—a loud cry of joy and delight. Finding that Cecily's careless generosity was even more lavish than Sue's own, the allegiance of Allen's wife

Good Taste Today
By Emily Post

REVEREND AS TITLE
On occasion in this column I have given advice to the effect that a clergyman who does not hold a doctor's degree should not be spoken to, and of, as Mr. Santly... never Reverend Saintly. This opinion, which I had at first given, in my book as being in accord with best taste, was endorsed further by the late Dr. Frank Vizetelly, editor of the Standard Dictionary, who pronounced the title Reverend directly preceding a surname grammatically incorrect. One might, of course, say Reverend Father, but not Reverend Jones, nor even Reverend Henry Jones in conversation (Rev. Henry Jones is correct on an envelope).

Now and then, when in answer to a letter in this column I have given Mr. Jones as the only proper way to speak of or to a Protestant clergyman who is not called Doctor Jones or Pastor Jones, a certain number of readers have written me that to them Mr. Jones in place of Reverend sounds disrespectful. Others tell me that their clergyman is always called Reverend, no other name being necessary. Usually, too, they tell me they like Reverend and that they consider it both friendly and respectful.

To these letters I have felt hesitant about saying anything further than to repeat at some time later, when a new accumulation of letters on the subject made another answer necessary, that Reverend Jones is neither in best taste nor according to best English, but that if the people of such a church do not mind either of these features, there is no further rule against it. Today, however, I would like to answer this question with a clipping from the magazine "Time." The article is headed "Mr. Jones." Rev. Jones is a name that is never used in the United States, and is not a doctor. "D. D." or "Ph. D." is like other men's names. Last week the Ministerial Association of Los Angeles, California, voted that "Mr. Jones" be dropped in all references to one another in speech or in writing, and that all titles, except that of "Reverend," be dropped. The article says that their friends are to be "puzzled" would stop inflicting them.

One Initial Suitable For Everything
Dear Mrs. Post: Is a single initial suitable marking for all the household linen and silver, I don't like the combinations of initials and thought the initial of my future last name would solve the problem.

Answer: The single initial would be suitable in fact, there that are worked into some kind of design are very popular, but less than may require both sciences to solve such a case. Your personality always inter-acts with your disease.

Many people resolutely go on about their duties, for instance, ignoring actual signs of heart impairment. The may really have organic heart trouble but will refuse to give up their active work, when they actually ought to do so.

Others, like Hulda, may have no organic trouble at all. But they can subconsciously, if not even consciously, parade all the symptoms of an organic disease, and immediately become invalids.

I have seen them simulate epilepsy, deafness, blindness, heart trouble, and even insanity, when there wasn't a bit of real evidence to support such diagnoses.

The Ambulance Racket
In our large cities the "ambulance chasers" have developed quite a racket, built upon such malingerings. Unscrupulous lawyers, without enough legitimate practice to make ends meet, will quickly get in touch with every accident case.

They soon "sell" the injured person on the fact that he is probably much more seriously hurt than the doctors tell him. They frighten him by wild tales about "internal injuries" which don't show up for years and years.

Then they tell supposedly true stories of men who were injured in childhood, but didn't think much of the accident, only to find that cancer had developed in the interval.

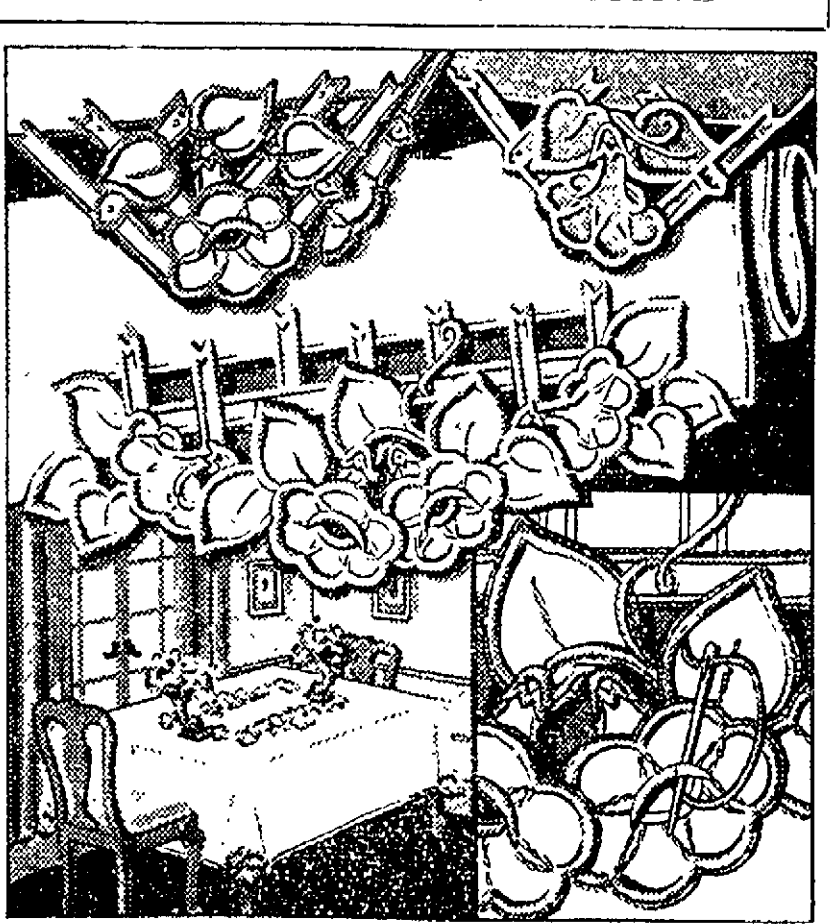

By this time they have the accident victim thinking he is really near death's door. It isn't difficult to persuade him to sue for a huge sum, with the lawyer taking his large commission of whatever settlement he can win for the client.

Malingering Patients
Sometimes people who have nothing but a few superficial scratches, will begin to develop all sorts of supposed ailments of an internal sort until they are bedridden or hobbling about on crutches.

They seldom get well until a financial settlement or the Supreme Court has disposed of the case.

Many people are suffering from such induced ailments which are subconsciously developed to further an ulterior end. Hulda's heart attacks happen to be purely psychological in nature.

Skiing Is Fun, Looks Easy, and if You Fall You Just Start Over Again

This business of learning to ski seems easy, but there's a definite knack to it as you can see by the accompanying pictures. It seems you start out by slipping into the harnesses and fastening them, and then gliding along with the aid of ski poles until you get to a favorable hill, as in Figure 1, or the picture at the upper left, showing Miss Bertha Buell, left, 1324 W. Rogers avenue, and Miss Betty Stroeb, Stroeb's Island. You arrive at the crest of the hill, as in Figure 2, top center, demonstrated by Miss Patricia Van Rooy, 528 W. Lawrence street. And then you bend your knees slightly, lean forward, and off you go, skimming like a bird,—but you invariably land in the position shown in Figure 3, upper right, as Miss Beverly Maxwell, 422 S. State street, did, or at least something similar. However, you just pick yourself up, brush yourself off, shoulder your skis and with a nonchalant smile, demonstrated by Miss Pearl Stroeb, lower right, you trudge back up the hill to start all over. All of the girls are members of Appleton Ski club which will give its first annual Snow Ball next Saturday night, Feb. 10, at Rainbow Gardens. Miss Betty Stroeb, a student at the University of Wisconsin, is spending a few days between semesters at her home. (Post-Crescent Photos.)

Nansen Says Finland Is in Need of Prompt Help; Terms Aid Good Insurance for U. S.

THERE are things in this world worse than war, fates worse than being victims of war, Odd Nansen, Norwegian architect, told an audience of women in the council chambers of the city hall yesterday afternoon, speaking on "Finland and the Other Scandinavian Countries in the Present Crisis." Mr. Nansen son of the late Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, internationally known explorer, scientist and statesman, also addressed a gathering of students and townspeople later in the afternoon at Lawrence Conservatory of Music and was one of the speakers at the convention banquet of the Wisconsin Constructors, Inc., last night at Conway hotel.

Mr. Nansen went on to say that he used to think he was a pacifist, having worked for years with victims of war and having seen incredible human suffering, but had learned that there are things worse than war through a glimpse behind the curtain of Europe today at the "victims of peace" under communistic and nazi regimes.

"Finland is fighting against men who in cold figuring can sacrifice millions of people for their own imperialistic ambitions," he said. "This battle means not only to be or not to be for Finland, but also for all Scandinavia and perhaps all of Europe."

Needs Aid Quickly
Stating that his purpose in appearing throughout the United States is to convince the people of this country that it is not only worth while helping Finland but that it is good insurance to do so, Nansen pointed out that help does not mean only sympathy, for military authorities agree that Finland alone can keep Russia out only on the condition that she get sufficient material aid and get it quickly.

"Finland stands today for culture against barbarism," the speaker said, "and therefore the battle she is fighting is our battle, yours and mine."

He spoke of the almost unbelievable manner in which Finland is holding back a military power many times her own strength in a way that is making the world hold its breath. He pictures the Russian forces as a helpless, leaderless mob, confronted by trained, skilled, determined soldiers and officers, and he pointed out that since 1937 between 50 and 60 per cent of the officers in the Red army have been executed. However, Nansen said the truth must be faced, that an army can't shoot without bullets.

Finland needs fighting planes, anti-aircraft guns to fight off the almost daily attacks and to protect her women and children. Even if some people would rather send foodstuffs than military supplies, he added, there would be no use in sending such things if there were no one left to eat it.

Sees Dangers
The United States may not fear invasion, Nansen said, but he cau-

A social hour will follow the ceremonies.

Officers of the local club are Bernard Nemschoff, president; David Bliss, secretary; Alvin Blinder, treasurer; Gerd Weinzwieg, chaplain; David Blacher, sergeant-at-arms; and Ben Blacher, publicity chairman. Other members are Israel Shilerat, Abraham Jacobson, Bernard Simonofsky and Milton Libman, Appleton; and Jerome Kaufman, Kaukauna.

B'nai B'rith lodge advisers include Sam Belinke, Stanley Hamilton, Ely Sires, Morey Malofsky and John Alpert.

granting aid to Finland would have on United States neutrality, Mr. Nansen said. "If you are looking for laws against it, you'll find them," he mentioned the neutrality law, but he went on to say that Finland is not a belligerent and there has been no war declaration.

Discusses Objections
Discussing the objection some people make against Finnish relief on the grounds that there is an unemployment problem in this country to be handled first, the speaker said that it is an old excuse for doing nothing and added that the same problem exists in practically every country. If Finland is crushed, he said, the same thing will happen to Sweden and Norway and probably to the rest of Europe, and therefore United States will lose her important markets in Europe. There will be more unemployment in this country, he went on, and the ground will be better prepared for unsound and crazy doctrines.

In answer to a question from the floor, the speaker said that there are three ways to help Finland, by bringing pressure to bear on Washington to grant the Finnish loan, by relief work for moving civilians to safety zones, and by material gifts for war materials. Answering another question as to what effect and cards will be placed after the meeting. As this is the last night before lent, members may bring wives, husbands and friends as their guests.

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
APPLETON High school basketball team almost won a Valley conference game last night through the back door, in other words via the free throw route. But it was another case of "almost" and as a result the records show the Terrors dropped a 27 to 24 decision to Fond du Lac at Fondy.

The Terrors counted 12 points from the free throw mark for which they should be complimented. But they scored only six goals from the field for which they get no compliments. Their shooting was so bad that they scored only one field goal in the first half and Coach Harold Briesse, acting for Coach Myron Seims who is ill, was ready to commit almost anything to get the cover off the hoop.

Aside from that it was Fond du Lac's use of the fast break which ruined the Terrors. The Cardinals pulled it for four baskets, a substitute named Klinezing getting three of the goals. In each instance Appleton was a lamentably long ways out of the picture.

Fondy Leads 6 to 0
Appleton opened the game in its usual rather listless manner and in a few minutes Fond du Lac had scored six points and the Terrors hadn't made the acquaintance of the scorer. The points were two baskets by O'Brien, center, and two free throws. Klinezing gave Appleton a free throw and then tossed a long basket and the quarter ended with Fond du Lac showing 10 points and Appleton 4, all behind Klinezing's name.

The second quarter saw Appleton control the ball much of the time and Fond du Lac treat the Terrors rather roughly. The result was that Appleton tied the score at 10-10 on free throws. Just before the period ended, Fond du Lac broke out with two fast breaks in succession and a free throw and the Terrors trailed 15-10 as the teams rested.

Appleton got a free throw for the first point of the third quarter but another fast break saw Appleton bringing up the rear and Fond du Lac led 17 to 11. Blacher then missed a free throw but Lathrop pushed the ball back through the hoop for Appleton's second basket of the game. A free throw by Burton led the score 17 to 14 for Fond du Lac and then the Cardinals showed versatility by dumping two long shots.

Cooper Ousted
Cooper sent Appleton's hopes up with a one-handed push from the side of the floor but a moment later left the game on personals when attempting to charge through to the basket on a dribble. Gores made the throw and the third quarter ended 22 to 16 for Fondy. Cooper had collected three personals in the opening quarter and had been on the bench in the second period.

When play was resumed Burton took a tipped ball from Lathrop, pivoted and scored Fondy's second two points but a moment later Heid repeated Burton's stunt for a basket and when Klinezing got a free throw the score stood 24 to 21 for Fond du Lac. Gores left the game on the personal which gave Klinezing his throw and Klinezing replaced him.

Klinezing immediately showed what a pest he was by getting a free throw and then sinking a basket when a mate heaved the ball the length of the floor to him. The score then was 27 to 21 for Fond du Lac. Lathrop got a basket for Appleton to revive hopes and Burton a free throw but that was all as Fond du Lac controlled play too much of the time.

Fond du Lac wasn't as smooth offensively as when it opposed Appleton earlier in the season. However, it found the fast break easy against Appleton's rather slow entry, and the instances were enough to turn the tide. Coach Briesse of the Terrors used John Bartman, a junior varsity forward, in the last four minutes of the game but he had little chance to try for the hoop.

Juppe scored a field goal and followed with a free toss to show 9 points for the losers, Jim Vanden Heuvel and Hoffmeister of the Squires contributed free shots as the second period ended.

Fireworks Begin

The fireworks started in the third period with Collins taking the tip-off to score and give the visitors a temporary lead. Jimmy Koehn scored four free shots in a row on fouls as the Squires roughed him in the next melee. Madiol and Koehn had a double foul called on them with Madiol scoring.

McCabe broke away to score a side shot and Harold Vanden Heuvel converted on one of two free shots with Connie Vanden Heuvel tipping in the rebound on the second shot. Juppe left the game on four personals and Hartman, who replaced him, converted on a free toss to end the third period, 20 to 15.

At the start of the final period, Collins and Connie Vanden Heuvel were ousted for not controlling their tempers. Harold Dercks scored a side shot and Jim Koehn followed with a long shot for a 24 to 15 lead. Hartman and Madiol scored a long shot and a short shot to close the gap, while Harold Vanden Heuvel, McCabe, and Koehn converted on free shots as the Squires attempted to stop the locals' stall, with Hartman shoving in a long shot in the dying seconds of the game.

The win gives the locals a chance to tie St. Mary's Menasha for the local title with the Zephyrs still to meet the locals here on Feb. 21. Last season the Dutchmen were co-champs with St. Mary's.

The opening game of the evening saw Troop 31 Boy Scouts of Kaukauna defeat the local Troop 32 Scouts, 16 to 15, after an overtime. Mervin Widenberg tied up the score, 13-all, in the final seconds on a free shot to send the game into an extra period. Kramer scored the winning point for the visitors in the overtime with three seconds left.

We're among those laughing at the cheap bankers who are busy counting out poor Glenn Cunningham. The guy gathers a mile in 4:11 and they say he's washed up. For crying out loud!"

Patty Berg Takes 38-Hole Victory

Defeats Betty Jameson for Fifth Miami-Biltmore Championship

BY GAYLE TALBOT
CORAL GABLES, Fla. — (P)—After having watched those two healthy, husky youngsters, Betty Jameson and Patty Berg, battle away at each other for 38 holes in a sensational golf match, I'm almost moved to ask how long this has been going on.

That Patty won the second extra hole must have been important to Patty, for it gave her her fifth consecutive victory in the Miami-Biltmore tournament. But to me the astounding thing was the brand of golf they played yesterday.

If this were a sample, women's golf need not necessarily be boring. This was as exciting a golf match as I ever saw, and a lot of other limp witnesses are saying the same.

Betty and Patty, a couple of 21-year-old girls, put on a match to remember, all right. Under the sort of pressure that has wilted many a man golfer, and over a course that is long and exacting, each shot a pair of 76's, with no putts conceded.

When it was over Betty, the national champion, said: "The better golfer won—I'll tell you that."

And, exhausted as they were when the match ended, the two girls quietly and without any big dickering agreed to play an exhibition 18-hole match against each other today at nearby Hollywood.

mainly because Johnny Farrell, the former open champion, asked them to.

For 35 consecutive holes Jameson didn't miss a putt that she reasonably could have been expected to sink. Then, on the thirty-sixth hole, needing only to sink a simple six-footer to win the match, she missed.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—Dear Staff: So John Payne may be signed to contract by 20th Century-Fox! The news intrigues me.

John, who is a very charming young man (and I u c k y enough to be married to Anne Shirley), has already been under contract to Warner Brothers, in that order. He was released by both companies.

So something is wrong; either the studios are crazy, or I am. What can be in the back of Fox officials' minds in signing Payne? Do they think they are more clever than Paramount and Warner's — able to do things with John where others failed?

Don't get me wrong — I don't say Payne lacks possibilities. He may be another Robert Taylor in disguise. But twice he started off with great fanfare — and each time nothing happened. Either the studios lost interest or else John failed to exhibit what it takes on the screen.

If he does a turn-about and clicks big for Fox, won't that make suckers out of Paramount and Warner's? On the contrary, if he again fails to make good, doesn't Fox assume the sucker role? It's a cinch someone is a goat when an actor released by two other studios is signed by a third. Only time will tell who that someone is.

It is very confusing. And it further my belief that the real story of Hollywood has not yet been filmed. It never will be, because the picture would be so full of stuff who arrive soon to join the "Fibber McGee and Molly" program, are negotiating for a series of two-reelers. Canadian-born Cecilia Parker will get her final citizenship papers next April 26, her birthday. Those early A. M. exercisers who speed a tandem bike over Beverly bridal paths are Chico and Groucho Marx. Frances Langford is giving an Hawaiian luau tonight to celebrate Rudy Vallee's new air contract. "The Woman," Australian mag, names Nelson Eddy the "most popular" star for the second straight year.

Looks like studios that planned production in England to utilize embargoed capital have hit a snag because of war jitters. Cancel that announced p. a. tour for Jackie Cooper — called off by studio order. Jane Withers is sending 20th Century execs four 16 millimeter tests of "best-bet" kiddies she's discovered" on her current tour. Despite denials, expect Helen Parrish and Forrest Tucker to Yu-mate some time next month. Hate to end the day on an ominous note, Boss, but C. B. De Mille, a major foibles, there wouldn't be room for a decent plot.

JIMMY FIDLER

Dear Boss: Speaking of studio foibles. Here's one that tickles our sense of humor. Seems that 20th Century execs, after working out production schedules and cost estimates for the next "Charlie Chan" opus, discovered they were bound to go over budget unless script changes were made. Many were the conferences which followed. Finally John Stone, producer of the Chans, hit on a brilliant solution. The script called for the steamer carrying Charlie to the Mainland to leave Honolulu at mid-day, and that, of course, meant hundreds of extras, an orchestra, leis and all the other appurtenances of Hawaiian farewell. "Change it," said Mr. Stone. "We'll have the boat leave at midnight — in a heavy fog!"

Here's amusing proof of what fame can do. Some years ago, Jerry Colonna made a number of phonograph records, issued under the "Vocalian" trademark (Columbia's "Class B" line). Now that he's a hit on radio and screen, those old recordings are being re-issued — but this time they'll be "Class A" Columbia records.

Dear Boss: Speaking of studio foibles. Here's one that tickles our sense of humor. Seems that 20th Century execs, after working out production schedules and cost estimates for the next "Charlie Chan" opus, discovered they were bound to go over budget unless script changes were made. Many were the conferences which followed. Finally John Stone, producer of the Chans, hit on a brilliant solution. The script called for the steamer carrying Charlie to the Mainland to leave Honolulu at mid-day, and that, of course, meant hundreds of extras, an orchestra, leis and all the other appurtenances of Hawaiian farewell. "Change it," said Mr. Stone. "We'll have the boat leave at midnight — in a heavy fog!"

Here's amusing proof of what fame can do. Some years ago, Jerry Colonna made a number of phonograph records, issued under the "Vocalian" trademark (Columbia's "Class B" line). Now that he's a hit on radio and screen, those old recordings are being re-issued — but this time they'll be "Class A" Columbia records.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

SATURDAY TALK

A reader who does not want me to publish his name has sent me an odd letter, in which he claims to have known about the course of events in advance. Here is how his letter goes:

"I have been a reader of your columns for a good many years, and have learned a lot from them. I have been thinking of writing to you for a long time to ask you to give me the address of one of the astronomers you have referred to at times. I might ask him what he can see that might get between the earth and the sun that might make it dark on earth for 45 days. This will happen in the fifties, if I am right in my thinking."

"I have known everything beforehand that has happened in the past 20 years, and I am sure I know the next 20 years. I am a World War veteran, and expected the Kaiser to go into another country, and live until a lieutenant of his brought him back through another war that would start 20 years after the last one stopped. The Kaiser will go back on the throne again. This is all Bible prophecy."

"I have heard before of people who believe they can foretell the future by 'Bible prophecy.' There also are some who speak of 'writings found in the pyramids' which tell the future."

Astronomers do not know of anything which is likely to get in the way of the sun and cause darkness for 45 days on earth. In fact an eclipse of the sun would not cause total darkness for even 45 minutes.

From time to time, the planets Mercury and Venus cross the face of the sun. They do not, however, block out enough light to matter. Astronomers have to take great pains to observe the passage at all.

When the sun is eclipsed, its light is blocked out by the moon. Since Venus is far larger than the moon, one might wonder why this planet does not eclipse the sun for us. The reason has to do with distance. Venus is many times as far away as the moon.

Close one eye, and hold a pencil a foot in front of the other eye. With the pencil you can block out the light of the sun. If the same pencil were held up a block away, how much light would it block?

As to the Kaiser coming back, no one could say for certain, but most persons do not expect it to happen. He is now quite an old man, having reached the age of 81.

Wanted Benny McCoy; Benswanger Says Frisch May Have an Idea

Pittsburgh.—(U)—William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, hung out the welcome sign today and admitted he had a batch of players he'd like to swap for a good infielder.

At the same time he warned the National league his Bucs aren't in the mood to stand for any kicking around this year.

"With a bunch of new faces, our club will be a different outfit than it was last year," he declared. "I don't say we'll win the pennant but you can bet that new overcoat we'll have a winning club."

Benswanger left today for New York and the baseball writers dinner and made no secret of the fact that he hoped to bump into an attractive trade. He said:

"What we need right now is a good infielder. Not that last year's combination is washed up, but you can't expect the same players to last through the season without a little relief."

The Pirates offered Benny McCoy $35,000 to play second base but Connie Mack's Athletics won out in the bidding.

Benswanger said he had plenty of trading material at hand with the roster listing about ten outfielders, five catchers and more than a dozen pitchers.

"So far I haven't any definite deals pending but Manager Frankie Frisch has been on the ground in New York all winter and may have lined up something good that I haven't heard about," he added.

Benswanger expects Frisch to inspire the team to new heights declaring "he is the kind of manager who has to win. With him the boys will have to be on their toes all the time—or else."

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Adequate Wiring Stops Family Squabbles: Kafura Is Helpful

BY KATHLEEN ROBERTSON (From McCall's Magazine)

Why do families squabble? Some day the psychologists are going to study the reasons and we won't be a bit surprised to learn that most of them are about little things. Getting on each other's nerves, having to wait for each other, leaving things in an awkward, untidy way, buttons not sewed on—and so on and so forth.

One would think that we were still living in the dark ages, the way we forget that electricity is intended to give us these conveniences which we enjoy with many causes of unnecessary bickering. It would be interesting to sit down with a list of a week's arguments and see how many of them could be avoided.

In many houses, electricity is not given a chance to do its work for family comfort and ease, because the wiring isn't correct or right. Adequate wiring and plenty of outlets let electricity do the things which you want done—things which are petty headaches and heartaches as long as they remain undone.

How one house became happy is told in the "before and after" pictures. But the pictures show only a few of many ways in which adequate wiring can spread cheer. For instance, there need be no more hand-to-hand engagements with falling hairbrushes, nor prolonged hunts for shoes that lurk stubbornly in pitch-black corners. A light in every closet is another item of newfound enjoyment.

Many a woman could zip through ironing in jig time if the laundry room had heavier wire and proper appliance outlets; then maybe she could get at that sewing that she's been planning for ages.

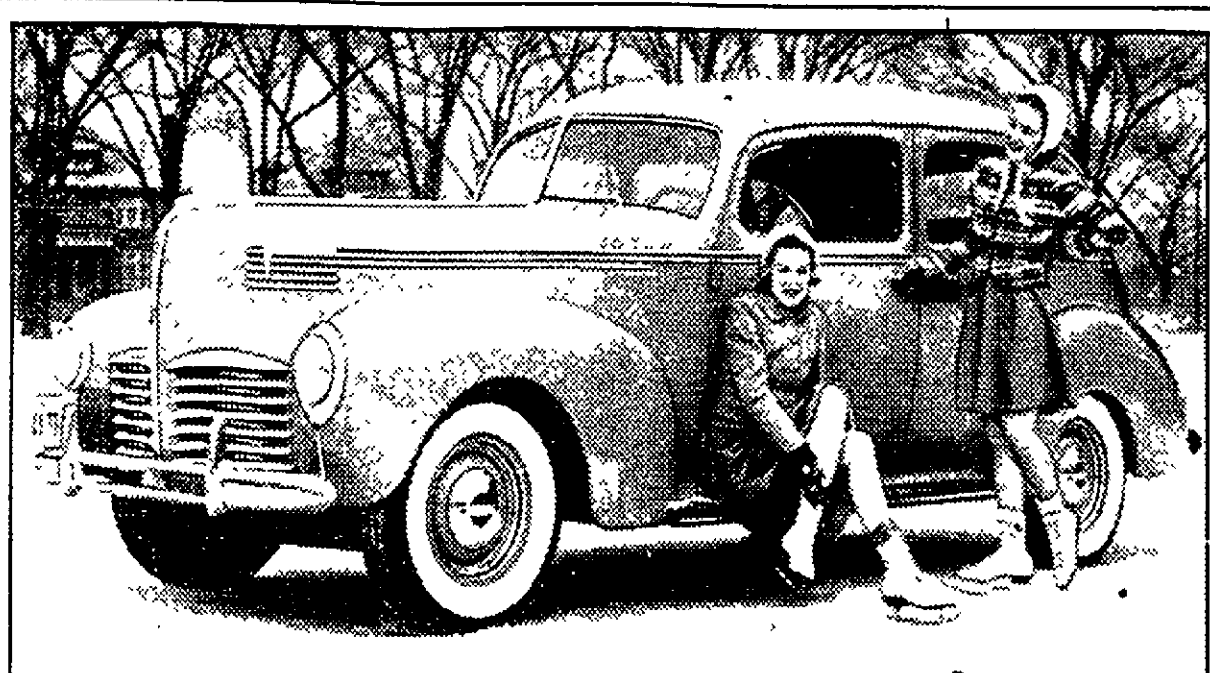

More Lights

Many a house needs a light in the garage, operated on a two-way switch from either the house or the garage. All entry ways and porches

Safety Can't be Bought; Requires Wide Promotion

Drivers Must Give Full Cooperation to Stop Accidents

Motorists should be constantly reminded of the words of wisdom once spoken by George Horace Lorimer: "It is good to have money and the things money can buy, but it is good, too, to check up once in awhile and make sure you haven't lost the things that money cannot buy." We buy cars built for safety, mechanical performance, the up-to-date safety standards on our highways gives a favorable outlook for a reduction of automobile accidents; millions of dollars are used for safety educational programs. Fortunes are spent annually to insure safety—yet, the annual highway accident injury and death toll answers back, "Safety cannot be bought." All the work of automotive engineers, highway engineers and educators cannot function properly without the fullest cooperation of the human element which plays a dynamic part in highway accidents.

They are: Idlevold school, town of Seymour, Myra Reis, teacher; Opal Ahlin, Gerald Schaumburg, Robert Fleming, Esther Krause, Caroline Blohm, Helen Henn, Jimmie Fleming, Harold Henn, Maynard Schaumburg, Robert Arndt and Joyce Blohm.

Center Valley school, town of Center, Marion K. Schlitz, teacher; Ila Wehling, Gordon Wehling, Helen Wehling and William Frank.

Realizing the deficiency in controlling the human element in highway accidents, conscientious motorists buy protection against highway accident costs by insuring their legal liability in a reputable insurance carrier, such as Home Mutual Casualty Company of Appleton.

Accident costs are so transferred from the individual to the insurer—yet by transferring worries and expenses after the accident, the car driver is not relieved of his social responsibility before the accident. Not only will the prevention of the automobile accident eliminate human suffering, it will reduce automobile insurance premium rates. The public is directly responsible for the premiums charged for automobile insurance protection. The driving and loss experience of the car drivers determines the cost chargeable by insurance carriers for the assumption of the automobile liability risks. The insurance companies merely promulgate the rates and act as trustees to handle public funds in the administration and servicing of automobile casualty claims. The official of the various companies are agents for those who carry insurance and suffer losses.

Berliner Beer Ideal for Every Party; Sam Mader Is Distributor

At any social gathering (including the Valentine Day party which is the next big event on the calendar) beer is a recommended beverage according to Sam Mader, Berliner beer distributor for this vicinity.

Selection of the right brand is important however, explains Mr. Mader, for the average guests these days are so well acquainted with the leading brands of beer on the market that they are really competent, critical judges of the host or hostesses choice.

Berliner, "the beer of quality" is always a happy, fitting choice for it boasts the mark of superiority brought about by years of careful brewing by expert brewmasters. The distributor, therefore proudly recommends Berliner for all occasions because of its wholesome purity and refreshing goodness.

People who have enjoyed Berliner agree that no matter when or where this beer is served the delicious taste of this exceptional brew instantly identifies itself with the very first glass and places it in a class by itself.

For those who may not have yet experienced the pleasure of Berliner and to those who are familiar with this popular beer, Mr. Mader suggests that now is an advantageous time to order a case or two and be ready for Valentine's Day entertaining. A case of this beer on hand then to will give a feeling of security from embarrassment from unexpected guests dropping in and finding the refrigerator bare. Tavern and home delivery service is available by phoning Mr. Mader, 3029.

State Oleo Tax Enforcement Will Not be Relaxed

Believe South Has Better Understanding of Wisconsin Policy

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Spokesmen for the state department of agriculture reiterated this week that the state oleo tax law will be enforced as long as it is on the statute books, while they expressed a belief that meetings with southern representatives recently have brought about a friendlier feeling and understanding toward the state and its oleo policy from southern interests.

At a recent conference of southern officials of agricultural departments at Nashville, Herman Ihde and Ralph E. Ammon, Wisconsin representatives, asked by Governor Heil to attend, emphasized that state agricultural officials are expected to serve the demands and the needs of Wisconsin agriculture, and that Wisconsin farmers want the oleo tax law to remain and to be enforced.

Repeals Statement

At the capitol yesterday, Ihde repeated his statement of the farmers' attitude (he is a farmer and past president of the state Grange), and said:

"The governor has his own ideas. We are doing what we think the farmers of Wisconsin want."

He referred to a question on the apparent inconsistency between his stand and Governor Heil's support of a movement to repeal the oleo levy.

Both Ammon and Ihde explained that Wisconsin farmers have resented the merchandising tactics employed by oleo manufacturers, and attributed to this resentment the enactment of the punitive tax law.

At the southern conference, the state representatives insisted that the state oleo tax does not interfere with southern farmers' economic interests because the southern farmer receives little if anything for the cottonseed he produces. The most he gets, said Ammon, is free ginning of his cotton. Moreover, most of the oleo manufacturers are not in the south, but in Chicago, he argued.

One Is Beloved BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

Sue's eyes were stern. "Our dear Dr. Van Ness! I can hardly believe it, Allen!"

"It's a fact! And young Baker gives me thunder if Pats so much as sheds a tear—and gosh, how many she can shed if I cross her about anything! He declares he'll put her in the hospital if she can't have peace at home. So there I am, Sue!" His unhappy voice trailed into silence.

"Never mind, Buddy! The baby's due next month and then things will be different. Cecily can hardly come to the apartment while Patsy's in the hospital and by the time she is home again, Cecily may be gone. Just don't worry about it, Allen."

"It's a fine note, my wife entertaining my brother-in-law's first wife! And my sister practically clothing Pats herself!"

Again Sue was silent. It seemed to her she was always having to impose silence on herself these days. It was not she, but Cecily who was buying the lace-and-satin negligees, the cobwebby nightgowns, the dashing silver and gold mules that Pats exhibited proudly. She thought such garments not only unsuitable for the wife of a struggling young engineer, but a little vulgar as well. They affronted her love for the severely simple, the beauty of texture and line rather than lavishment.

Claims Reds Fight Foes Of Finn Working People

London — (U) — Pravda, Moscow communist party newspaper, was quoted in a broadcast last night as declaring that the red army "will destroy the enemies of the working people of Finland"—the Helsinki government.

The announcer identified the broadcast as from the Moscow official radio station.

"The soviet army is fulfilling its duty for the liberation of the Finnish people from their white guarantists under Mannerheim," Pravda was quoted as saying in an editorial.

Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim is commander-in-chief of the Finnish forces.

Paris Backs London On Search of Mails

Paris — (U) — France's blockade ministry in a communique Friday supported Britain's contention that the allies were within their rights in examining United States and other neutral mails in their search for contraband destined for Germany.

The communique said the allied contraband controls had seized millions of dollars in currency, jewels and goods which it asserted nazi agents and sympathizers had dispatched to German destinations. It said goods seized included a heavy traffic in foodstuffs labelled "commercial samples."

MATTER OF OPINION

Buenos Aires—(U)—Cops from the 32nd precinct in this city were found undergoing religious teaching at headquarters every day before going on their beats. The newspaper "Critica" which made the discovery, quoted one of them as saying he was made to learn a psalm that started off, "To heaven, to heaven will I go..."
